LONDON CORONATION FORETASTE

Traffic Jams Begin In West End; Swarming Visitors

Princess Paul of Yugoslavia, sister of the Duchess of Kent, will be a guest at Buckingham Palace during the Coronation festivities.

K.C.R. EXPRESS RIDDLE

4 CHILDREN SENSELESS

Kidnapping is believed to lie behind the discovery of four young children, in an unconscious condition, in the Canton-Kowloon express yesterday.

Although this is the theory, advanced in the case, an air of complete mystery surrounds the affair, as the children have been unable to give any explanation of the circumstances.

The children, all of them Chinese, were found by railway police shortly after the Express had left Canton for Kowloon. They were without tickets and were lying about the carriage unconscious.

The only clue to the mystery is a parcel of Chinese tobacco which was found in the pockets of each of the children.

It is thought the children were abducted by someone who had first drugged them, but who had lost his nerve at the approach of the ticket collectors and left the carriage.

The children were taken off the train at Shek Lung station, where they were to catch the next train back to Canton, and the affair is now being investigated by the Canton police authorities.

WARSHIPS IN THE THAMES

Arrive For Coronation Display

London, Yesterday. The warships taking part in the Coronation ceremonies in London arrived in the Thames today.

Many Londoners will see little of the British Navy unless they go to Portsmouth, and to-day large numbers travelled along the Thames for a sight of the warships.

Another rehearsal of the Coronation Service was held in Westminster Abbey this morning at which Queen Mary attended for the first time.

The King and Queen were absent, having departed for Royal Lodge, in Windsor Great Park, for the week-end. They are probably returning to London on Sunday night.—Reuter.

QUEEN MOTHER'S SURPRISE TOUR

LONDON, YESTERDAY. SCENES NOT WITNESSED IN ENGLAND SINCE THE TIME OF THE GREAT WAR ATTENDED THE ARRIVAL AT THE LONDON RAILWAY TERMINI TO-DAY OF 30,000 OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE SERVICES TO PARTICIPATE IN THE CORONATION CEREMONIES.

Troop trains came from as far distant as Plymouth, Inverness and Belfast, while seven special trains brought 3,000 sailors and marines from Chatham, Portsmouth and Devonport.

Overseas visitors who arrived early in order to avoid the last moment crush, are enjoying an elaborate programme of sightseeing.

They are being whisked all over the country, halts alternating at spots and institutions steeped in history and the most modern industrial defence spectacles.

Pedestrians Throng Streets

London, Yesterday. London is crowded with visitors and the West End was given a foretaste last night of the scenes which are to be expected during Coronation Week.

Cars and motor coaches laden with sightseers made tours of the Coronation procession route in such numbers that the efforts of additional police called in to control the traffic were necessary to prevent serious "jams."

Pedestrians turned out in vast numbers to view the decorations.

There were even larger crowds in the Coronation area to-day and it is expected that to-morrow the traffic problem will begin at a very early hour when another rehearsal of the Coronation procession will be held and will keep the authorities fully engaged until a late hour at night.

Special early trains, to arrive before 6 o'clock in the morning, are being run in connection with to-morrow's rehearsal. In most of the London Churches to-morrow, special forms of service in preparation for the solemn ceremony of the Coronation will be used and worshippers will be reminded that, beyond its pagantry and historical significance, the Coronation is primarily a religious service.

At night, the Archbishop of Canterbury will broadcast an address which will be relayed to St. Paul's Cathedral where, in common with several other churches, a special service will follow the ordinary evening service.—British Wireless.

ANOTHER MISSING MOTOR CAR

Mr. B. S. Lo made a report to the Police last evening to the effect that he parked his car, No. 8148, outside the Majestic Theatre at 7.15 p.m. and then went to see the show. Coming out at 9.10 he found that the car was missing. Up to a late hour last night, the car was not yet reported to have been found.

London is rapidly disappearing behind hutting in all corners, and the Coronation route itself has become a forest of metal tubes supporting tiers of seats, in places 60 feet high.

As a car proceeded slowly through the streets of Battersea (the constituency formerly represented by the Communist M.P., Mr. Saklatvala) yesterday, people stopped, looked and cried "It's Queen Mary!"

Cheering crowds quickly gathered and followed the car. The Queen Mother smiled and waved as she admired the gaily decorated streets.

OVERSEAS RUSH

The final rush of Overseas visitors started with the arrival at Liverpool of the Cunard liner Carinthia, which was crammed with passengers from New York and Boston.

Within three days, sixteen liners are due from Canada, the United States, the Far East, West Indies, Africa and New Zealand.

In addition, thousands will land at the Channel ports from the Continent.

MILLION SEATS

Of approximately 1,000,000 people who will be seated along the Coronation route, 200,000 will be Overseas visitors.

One remaining anxiety is the bus strike, which desperate efforts are being made to settle.

The strikers are among those who realise the deplorable effect the strike will have upon the multitude of guests.

Mr. Ernest Bova and other of the men's leaders attended Transport House at an early hour this morning, awaiting a further summons to the Ministry of Labour, where representatives of the London Passenger Transport Board are also expected.

SEEKING GUARANTEES

It is hoped the Board will be able to indicate a scheme to finance the concession of a seven and a half hour day, failing which a move by the Government may alter the situation.

The busmen still regard the proposals of the court of arbitration as inconclusive, and they are seeking a firm guarantee regarding an enquiry of experts into their grievances.—Reuter.

Married yesterday at Rosary Church. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McGrann. Before the wedding, the bride was Miss Kimi Barretto. There was a large attendance at the ceremony. ("Herald" photo).

Imperial Conference Opening

London, Yesterday.

The first plenary session of the Imperial Conference will open at St. James's Palace on Friday morning.

Prime Ministers and ministerial delegations representing the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Southern Rhodesia and Burma will attend.—British Wireless.

TRIPLE CHANNEL COLLISION

LONDON, YESTERDAY.

THREE STEAMERS—TWO OF THEM BRITISH AND THE OTHER ITALIAN—WERE INVOLVED YESTERDAY IN A CURIOUS ACCIDENT IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL OFF HASTINGS.

One of the British steamers, the freighter Willemsen (4,563 tons), collided with the Italian cargo-ship Gianfranco.

The British ship was seriously damaged and in response to her S.O.S. signals, the British freighter Thistleglen rushed to the scene.

The would-be rescuer, for some reason as yet unexplained, collided with the Willemsen, which suffered further damage.

The 83 members of the crew of the Willemsen were taken off by the Thistleglen, while tug-boats which were sent from Dover, towed the distressed ship into port, where she was beached.

The Italian steamer came off best in the triangular contest and suffered only minor damage. She was able to continue her voyage to Bremen unaided.—Trans-Ocean.

FOG THE CAUSE

The collision occurred during fog in the early morning. The Willemsen at first signalled she was proceeding to Southampton but finding she was badly holed, unsuccessful attempts were made to beach the vessel.

The Thistleglen took off the crew while the Dungeness lifeboat remained alongside.—British Wireless.

Platoons of Lieutenant Colonels

CURIOUS CANADIAN CONTINGENT

London, Yesterday.

The Canadian Coronation contingent which went into camp at Pirbright yesterday consists of 299 officers and other ranks of the regular army militia and air force.

Thirty-five members of the Canadian Mounted Police are at Knightsbridge Barracks and officers and men of the Royal Canadian Navy are due to land to-day or to-morrow. There are only four privates in the contingent at Pirbright.

It is made up of two platoons of Lieutenant Colonels and there are nearly 80 warrant officers either first or second class.

The rest are Majors, Captains, subalterns and non-commissioned officers.

The reason for this unusual makeup is that those who have come over have been chosen by their commanding officers solely because of their length of service and devotion to duty. Over 75 per cent wear medals and decorations and some were members of the Canadian contingent at the Coronation of King George V. Every branch of the Canadian armed forces is represented and every district and unit from the Atlantic to the Pacific.—British Wireless.

FALL FROM 5TH FLOOR

Coronation Fatality At Sincere's

A fatal accident associated with preparations for the Coronation festivities occurred at about 10.15 o'clock yesterday morning, when a Chinese electrician, named Tsai Chan, aged about 30 years, fell from the fifth floor of Sincere's, on the waterfront.

He suffered serious injuries which caused death to supervene while he was being conveyed to Hospital.

The man was one of several who were putting up electric fittings for illuminating the building during the coming celebrations. He lost his balance on the scaffold at the fifth floor level and crashed to the ground.

CATALAN LEADER ASSASSINATED

ANOTHER GOVERNMENT HEAD WOUNDED

(SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD")

Paris, Yesterday.

According to latest reports from Catalonia, the position of the Generalidad seems to have worsened.

Whereas fighting during the first two or three days of the anarchist revolt was confined to Barcelona, it has now spread to the provinces.

Yesterday saw an attack made upon a detachment of troops from Valencia, sent to quell the revolt, in the vicinity of Tortosa.

The Republican troops were ambushed by a large number of anarchists, who poured a withering fire into their ranks.

IN BARCELONA ITSELF AN ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO ASSASSINATE THE LEADER OF THE SOCIAL-DEMOCRATIC PARTY, SENOR CARNORERA.

SHOTS WERE FIRED AT HIM IN THE STREET, ONE OF WHICH FOUND ITS MARK, AND HE IS STATED TO BE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED.

THE INCIDENT FOLLOWS THE ASSASSINATION OF SENOR SESE, THE SOCIALIST TRADE-UNION LEADER, WHO WAS A MEMBER OF THE NEWLY-FORMED CATALAN GOVERNMENT.

It is reported that General Pozas, commander-in-chief of all armed forces in Catalonia, has proclaimed a state of martial law.

It is doubtful, however, whether he has the authority or power to enforce the order.—Trans-Ocean.

PARIS REPORTS

Paris, To-day.

Whereas some reports declare that the anarchists in Barcelona have returned to work and that the revolt in Catalonia has been settled, other messages indicate that street fighting continues in the Catalan capital.

The anarchists in Figueras and La Junquera are reported to have defeated a body of Republican troops, sent from Valencia to quell the revolt.

REVENGE SLAYING

One Paris paper publishes a report stating that the Catalan Socialist leader, who had been appointed to the new Catalan

CATALAN STATEMENT

Paris, Yesterday.

The situation in Barcelona has almost returned to normal, declares a radio agency report from that city received late this evening.

Telephone and telegraphic communication has been re-established, and there are less armed men on the streets, together with a subsiding of the fierce tension of the past few days.

The Catalan Government has issued an emphatic denial of earlier reports that over 1,000 were killed in the street fighting in the capital, but admit that over 400 met their death.—Trans-Ocean.

NUT and FRUIT LOAF

16 oz. fine wholemeal, 3 oz. sugar, 4 level teaspoonsful of Royal Baking Powder, 3 oz. chopped walnuts, 3 oz. currants, 2 eggs, 1 pint milk, 3 oz. butter or margarine.
Mix all dry ingredients together. Add nuts and currants. Whisk eggs, add milk and stir into dry ingredients. Melt butter or margarine and stir into mixture. Pour into two or three greased tins. Bake in moderate oven for 50 minutes to 1 1/2 hours, according to thickness of loaf.

This luscious Nut and Fruit Loaf will keep fresh and moist for days — if you make it with Royal Baking Powder. The recipe was especially planned for this high-quality baking powder. Use Royal in all your baking and you'll notice a finer, a more even texture and a more delicious flavour. Don't risk failure with an inferior baking powder.

You'll Need New Ideas For

SUMMER PICNICS

Here's A Hamperful Of Suggestions

ARE you planning a picnic? If so, you will be wondering what good things you can pack into the hamper.

Picnic fare has been entirely revolutionised by vacuum flasks and containers, and the modern outfit is so complete that you can serve an entire meal, from cocktails to coffee, in a country wood as easily as in your own dining-room.

You can even "sit down to table" if you wish, for there are now available tables and stools which fold so compactly that they can be stored in the average-sized car with ease.

A pie of some kind, with salad accompaniments such as potatoes and mixed vegetables, is favourite open-air fare. Make any kind of pastry that takes your fancy—puft, flaky, or short—but be guided by the personal taste of the picnic party in your choice of filling.

Vary The Pie Fillings

Here are a few suggestions for pie fillings:

Chicken and Veal.—Cut your fowl into portions, season each with chopped thyme, parsley, grated lemon rind, salt and pepper, and pack into the dish in layers with chopped raw bacon and raw veal. Fill with water or light stock.

Rabbit and Bacon.—Scrape the meat off the rabbit bones, cut it into portions and season with a mixture of flour, salt, pepper, and chopped parsley. Pack into the dish in layers with sliced hard-boiled eggs on top, and fill up with stock or water.

Veal and Ham.—Allow 1 1/2 lb. veal to 1/2 lb. ham, cut into pieces and put in layers with seasoning between. Add sliced hard-boiled egg and stock or water.

For The Sweet Course

Mixed fruit salad, packed in screw-top glass jars, to be served with cream would make a good sweet course dish, as would a cold chocolate mousse or an apricot cream.

The two latter could be put into small china or fluted paper souffle cases from which they could be eaten, thus saving the bother of extra plates.

Use a small tin of apricots for the cream. Slice the fruit and put the syrup into a pan, making the quantity up to half a pint with water. Add 2oz. sugar, the rind and juice of a small lemon, and rather less than 1/2oz. gelatine, stir over the fire till boiling and simmer for a few minutes.

Strain, cool, mix in the fruit puree, and add 1/2 pint cream or half cream and half unsweetened tinned milk, and divide into the cases.

Decorate each with a sprinkle of chopped pistachio.

For chocolate mousse dissolve, boil, and simmer for a few minutes 2oz. chocolate and 3/4 pint of milk, and pour on to 2 egg yolks mixed with 2oz. sugar. Add rather as less than 1/2oz. gelatine, and thicken over the heat without boiling.

Strain, cool, add a teaspoonful each of coffee essence and vanilla, and, when cool, fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites, mixed with an ounce of sugar and two tablespoonfuls whipped cream.

Divide into the cases and sprinkle with roughly chopped baked almonds.

If you feel elaborate-minded about the cheese course, decide between patties and eclairs.

For cheese patties, fill cooked pastry cases with cheese mixture and garnish with a sprinkle of decorative red pepper. The mixture comprises two tablespoonfuls grated parmesan mixed into a tablespoonful of well-seasoned white sauce, with top milk or unsweetened tinned milk to give it a creamy consistency.

Cheese eclairs are made of choux pastry piped in fingers on a dry baking sheet brushed with egg, baked for about half an hour, cooled, and filled with cheese pastry custard.

To make this, put 2 egg yolks and 1oz. flour into a pan, add 1/2 pint milk by degrees and stir over the fire until boiling. Add a large tablespoonful of grated cheese, a dust each of salt and pepper, and a tablespoonful of top milk.

MEATLESS LUNCHEON MENU

Spaghetti Italiane
Truite Meuniere
Pommes Nouvelles
Epinards a la Creme
Compote de Poires

BOIL 1/2 lb. of spaghetti in slightly salted water for 20 minutes; drain it well, then cook two tomatoes, skinned and chopped, in a little butter for a few minutes. Season with salt and pepper and add the spaghetti. Mix in two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, and serve with a liberal sprinkling of Parmesan cheese on top.

TRUITE MEUNIERE: Wash and season some small trout, roll them in flour and fry them in hot butter for a few minutes on each side. Arrange them on a hot dish, garnish with slices of lemon and parsley, and pour the butter from the pan on to the fish. Serve with new potatoes.

EPINARDS A LA CREME: Put the spinach through a sieve, after boiling in the usual manner. Reheat, and add pepper, salt and a tablespoonful of cream. Arrange on a dish with some scrambled eggs on top, and a few croutons stuck into the spinach.

TWO HATS AT ONCE!

BUT WHAT WILL HUSBANDS SAY?

SHE'S looking happy—and no wonder. What woman wouldn't be with two hats to be worn at the same time? It's ever better than having two strings to her bow. With the hats she becomes twice as fashionable, twice as charming, and—most important of all—excites double the ordinary amount of envy in her friends.

The reason for this double exposure, so fashion dictators tell us, is that hats have been growing steadily smaller and angles steeper during the last few years.

The new fashion has logically developed from the old, for designers have overcome the difficulty by combining both trends in the double hat.

Twin hats perched at a precarious angle add up to one complete model. Though quite separate from each other they are identical. Those in this picture are of fine, shiny straw and trimmed with stiffened quills. The fashion is what women have been waiting for four years. What all husbands will want to know is: Do you get two hats for the price of one or do you pay double for the one fashion?

"I expect he's constipated. Show me your tongue, Johnnie. Yes, I thought so. See how it's coated. Your head aches, too, doesn't it Johnnie; and you feel poorly? Sure signs that he's out of sorts."

"That's the trouble, Mrs. Wilson, his system wants a thorough cleansing. Give him a dose of California Syrup of Figs now and he'll be as happy as a lark in a few hours. It's difficult to keep them regular—when they're young they get lazy about it and are soon upset. But you can avoid all that by giving Johnnie a dose of California Syrup of Figs regularly every Saturday night. It will keep him fit and save you a world of sickness and worry."

"Safe? You couldn't have anything safer! It's a natural fruit laxative, and acts naturally on the bowels. That's why so many doctors recommend it, and give it to their own children."

"Let Johnnie go to the drug store for a bottle now. And let Johnnie be sure to say 'California Syrup of Figs' then there will be no mistake."

"You can't afford to take chances with medicines, particularly with the children. No matter whether it is for myself or a patient, I always insist on the best that money can buy."

California Syrup of Figs

NATURE'S OWN LAXATIVE

A Heat Wave Inspires

Long, Cool Drinks

IF inspiration were needed in the mixing of long drinks, surely a heat-wave should supply it. Let me spur your imagination with these suggestions.

Let cold drinks be really cold, hot ones really hot. Yes, but not toothache cold, nor scalding hot; only just too cold or too hot to drink when handed to the thirsty, so that they have a minute of exquisite anticipation, but not a period of agonised probation.

Cold drinks should have a bite in them—lemon or ginger, or with the sweetest of them both. Otherwise they simply slide down past your thirst and leave it clamouring.

Remember that all fruit mixtures intended for drinks should be left for at least an hour, preferably longer, before the soda is added to them.

A dash of salt is an improvement to every summer drink, and if you try a little black pepper, especially on pulpy fruit, you will be surprised at the effect it has.

Berry Crush

To a quart of fruit pulp rubbed through a sieve put a pound of castor sugar, or half of Barbadoes, cover the dish and leave it, with an occasional shake, for two hours or more, with the juice of three lemons, and a little apple juice. Serve it cold.

Very cold glasses are a great help. They can be put upside down in the sink, or on a tray, under the lawn-sprinkler, or kept in the collar. Or they can be stood in a basin of water with muslin over them hanging into the water. Do this all day, to glasses, bottles, or anything else, and so long as the water is kept replenished, and the basin is in the shade, the contents will be cool.

Thinly sliced cucumber, left to float in a jug of lemonade, gives a subtle flavour to the drink.

The Women's League of Health and Beauty TRAINING THE SPINE

The Spine (Vertebral Column) Swinging from the spine below are the hips and legs. Attached to the spine further up are the ribs; and still further up the shoulder blades; and, finally, on top sits the head—which sometimes contains a brain!

On the Spine therefore, primarily depends the poise and called the sacrum (that part of the back where the spine meets the hips), and train it into the right alignment with the head.

But, first, you must loosen the joints of the spine, and here are some exercises that will help:—

Kneeling, hands on hips, knees touching, feet apart, body erect. Abdomen drawn in, shoulder-blades drawn together.

(a) Swing the body (ribs lifted), chin leading, far round to the right and slightly up, keeping shoulder-blade together.

(b) Swing down, and forward, and up to left.

Arms extended behind. Palms down.

(a) Swing body and extended arms to the right.

PANCAKE SYRUP

A DELICIOUS syrup for pancakes may be made in the following way:—Rub one or more lemons with lump sugar until the rind is grated on to the sugar. Place the lumps in a small jug. Squeeze the lemons and strain the juice on to the sugar. Let it stand for a while and if the mixture is not thick enough add more sugar. This syrup may be served with pancakes instead of plain lemon juice and castor sugar.

CAPTAIN LEHMANN'S DEATH

BERLIN, YESTERDAY. A TOUCHING DESCRIPTION OF THE LAST MOMENTS OF CAPTAIN ERNST LEHMANN, THE VETERAN AIRSHIP COMMANDER WHO DIED IN LAKEHURST HOSPITAL ON FRIDAY NIGHT AS A RESULT OF HIS INJURIES IN THE HINDENBURG DISASTER, IS GIVEN IN A MESSAGE TO THE "NACHTANSCHAUUNG" FROM ITS NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.

Captain Lehmann, according to the report, retained full consciousness to the very end and was able to discuss the disaster with the commander of the airship base at Lakehurst, Commander Rosendahl, in detail before his death.

The last words addressed to the dying airship commander by his American friend were "Ernst, we will give you as much helium as you want in future. A similar catastrophe must not happen again."

LESSON OF DISASTER

Captain Lehmann thus died with the assurance that the lesson learned from the disaster will help to increase the safety of future ocean crossings by airship by the substitution of non-inflammable helium for hydrogen.

Although Captain Lehmann was undoubtedly in great pain, he gave no sign of the agony he was passing through by word or gesture, but merely kept on repeating the words "I don't want to die."

TALK WITH AMBASSADOR

Among those permitted to see and speak to him was the German Ambassador in Washington, Herr Hans Luther, who informed Captain Lehmann that the nation expressed the hope that he would recover from his injuries.

When the Ambassador spoke these words the doctors already knew that Captain Lehmann's condition was hopeless, and an hour later he passed peacefully away with a faint smile on his face.—Trans-Ocean.

COLONY'S FINANCE

Falling Off Marked in February

The Colony's financial statement for February reveals a sharp fall in revenue as compared with the same month of 1936, the total income being $1,914,473.66 as compared with $2,279,813.56 in February 1936.

A fall in licence revenue of $350,000 was the primary factor, and the Kowloon-Canton Railway income was $30,000 less. Post Office receipts, on the other hand, were up by $27,000 and duties brought in an additional $36,000. Expenditure exceeded income by over $300,000.

ROSARY CHURCH WEDDING

Mr. Alan McGrann And Miss Kimi Barretto

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Rosary Church yesterday morning between Mr. Alan McGrann, of the Harbour Department, and Miss Kimi Barretto.

The bride, who arrived at the Church on the arm of her father, Mr. J. C. Barretto, looked charming in a white lace frock and carried a bouquet of white gladioli. She was attended by her two sisters, the Misses Tulle and Clita Barretto, who were attired in white lace frocks embroidered in pink and blue. Little Miss Melin Gomes made a pretty flower-girl.

Mr. L. B. Gomes and Dr. J. W. Barnes performed the duties of best men.

Following the ceremony a large gathering of friends and relations repaired to the Little Flower Club, in Nathan Road, where the health of the happy couple was enthusiastically toasted.

Mr. and Mrs. McGrann left last night for Canton, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's going-away frock was of green embroidered organdy.

LONDON BUS STRIKE

NEW HOPES OF A SETTLEMENT

LONDON, YESTERDAY. WITH THE LONDON OMNIBUS STRIKE STILL CONTINUING, THE RESOURCES OF THE OTHER TRANSPORT SERVICES ARE OPERATING UNDER A HEAVY STRAIN.

Nevertheless, although the trams and underground trains are very crowded, the week without buses has passed off with less serious dislocation than had been feared.

Hopes of a settlement of the strike yesterday were disappointed but week-end developments will, it is anticipated by the newspapers, mark important progress towards ending the deadlock.

The Central Bus Committee of the Transport Workers Union met early this morning and remained in readiness to respond to a call to visit the Ministry of Labour.

A full delegate conference of the union has been arranged for to-night and this is regarded as indicating the prospect that by then some basis of discussion for a settlement may be found.

Meanwhile, the strike of provincial omnibus men shows signs of collapsing and in Kent full services of buses were resumed this morning.—British Wireless.

British Newspapers Banned In Italy

ROME, YESTERDAY. AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT MADE TO-DAY STATES THAT ALL ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS, EXCEPT THE "OBSERVER," "DAILY MAIL" AND "EVENING NEWS" HAVE BEEN PROHIBITED IN ITALY FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD.

The announcement adds that the order for recall of all Italian correspondents in England will come into force immediately.

To-day's newspapers have already appeared without any of the usual despatches from London.

RECALL OF ITALIAN CORRESPONDENTS JUST BEFORE THE CORONATION FESTIVITIES IS MUCH COMMENTED ON IN POLITICAL CIRCLES, WHERE THE QUESTION IS RAISED WHETHER THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT WILL EXPEL BRITISH CORRESPONDENTS FROM ITALY.

It is believed, however, that such a step is only contemplated in the case of those correspondents who have strongly criticised Italian foreign policy.

No official information is available on the subject, however.—Trans-Ocean.

PILLARS OF THE FORCE FAREWELL POLICE FUNCTION

LARGE GATHERING LAST NIGHT

The popularity and esteem in which Messrs. T. Murphy and P. Grant, Assistant Superintendents of Police, and Inspector S. Logan, who are shortly leaving for Home on retirement, are held, was amply demonstrated by the large number of members of the Police Force and friends who attended the farewell dinner held at the Police Club last night and presided over by the Hon. Mr. T. H. King, Inspector General of Police.

Well over 150 persons were present and among the guests were Mr. C. G. Alabaster, Mr. W. Schofield, Mr. E. H. Williams, Mr. K. Keen, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones, Mrs. Peggie, Pope and J. Solby, Mr. C. Champlin, Mr. J. Abbott, Mr. B. Wylie, Mr. J. B. H. Lee, Mr. M. Purvis, Mr. B. A. Mansell, Mr. P. Fitcher, Mr. N. C. Fitzhenry, Mr. W. M. Smith, Mr. K. Bidmead, Mr. H. W. E. Heath, Mr. W. L. Bart Sparrow, Mr. W. P. Thompson, Mr. A. R. S. Major, Mr. L. Callthorpe and Mr. W. Grimmit.

"FATHER OF FORCE"

In proposing a toast to the three officers, Mr. T. H. King said that his position as President of the Club entailed the difficult duty of presiding at functions for bidding good-bye to retiring officers and he could not recall a larger or more representative gathering. To Mr. "Tim" Murphy he referred as the "Father of the Force." He joined in 1903 and during that time had risen from the lowest rank to that of A.S.P. He had endeared himself not only to his equals but also to his superiors and subordinates by his cheerful, unselfish and considerate manner at all times especially in the Detective Department.

Of Mr. Grant he could say the same. He was known both for his hard work and his determination.

Both were holders of the highest award, the King's Police medal, which was bestowed for their work in the Force.

Mr. Logan, he continued, was a former chairman of the Club and had set an example to other members of the force by his steadiness, diligence and hard work at all times.

URGE TO CO-OPERATION

Mr. T. Murphy, after relating some of his experiences in the Detective Department, appealed to the younger members to give the same co-operation to his successor as they had given to him. He was leaving with regret and had to live his again would choose no other vocation than with the Police Force in Hong Kong.

Mr. Grant said that whatever success he had attained was by doing to others what he would like done to him, while Mr. Logan, in a witty speech, attributed his rank to "always trying."

The Coronation Night searchlight and rocket bouquets will take place at 11 p.m. which will approximate to the time when Their Majesties have returned to Buckingham Palace through London's cheering throngs.

The full naval programme follows:

At 8 a.m. on May 12, all H.M. Ships at buoys will dress overall. THREE SHIPS TO FIRE SALUTE. At noon, a Royal Salute of 21 guns will be fired by H.M.S. "Tamar," H.M.S. "Eagle" and H.M.S. "Diomedes".

Ships will be manned and on conclusion of the Royal Salute, Three Cheers for His Majesty the King will be given. The signal to "Splice the Mainbrace" will then be made.

At sunset, H. M. Ships will undress.

At 8 p.m. the illuminating circuits in H.M. Ships and H.M. Dockyard will be switched on; the signal for this will be the bursting of a white rocket from H.M.S. "Eagle".

ROCKET BOUQUETS. At 11 p.m. the illuminating circuits in H.M. Ships will be switched off and 20 seconds later a bouquet of rockets will be fired as follows:—

H.M.S. "Eagle"—Red rockets. H.M.S. "Diomedes"—White rockets. H.M.S. "Westcott"—Blue rockets.

One minute after this a searchlight display will commence, which will continue for 14 minutes. There will then be a period of one minute when the ships will be darkened, followed by a second bouquet of rockets as follows:— H.M.S. "Diomedes"—Red rockets. H.M.S. "Eagle"—White rockets. H.M.S. "Dainty"—Blue rockets.

THIRD BOUQUET. One and a half minutes after this another searchlight display will be given, lasting for 14 minutes, followed by a short period of darkness, and then a third bouquet of rockets.

H.M.S. "Dainty"—Red rockets. H.M.S. "Diomedes"—White rockets.

H.M.S. "Eagle"—Blue rockets. Illuminating circuits will then be switched on again until 2 a.m., when on a white rocket being fired by H.M.S. "Eagle" all circuits will be switched off.

On May 13, illuminating circuit will be switched on at 8 p.m. until 9.30 p.m., when a searchlight display will be given for half an hour. Illuminating circuits will then be switched on again until 2 a.m.

TRAFFIC ARRANGEMENTS. Traffic control arrangements have now been completed for the next few days, and they indicate that inaugural processions are to take place on May 11, the day before the Coronation.

The processions will be held between the Cairne Road level and the Praya west of Pedder Street and traffic is advised to make detours. The police point out that during the period of the Chinese processions, there are certain to be long intervals when vehicular traffic will be completely stopped. Motorists are warned to study the proposed routes and avoid them.

MURRAY PARADE GROUND PARK. For the three days of the celebrations, H.E. the G.O.C. has made available Murray Parade ground as a general car park between the hours of 6 p.m. and 4 a.m. This arrangement follows the decision to close all normal car parks in the city, with the exception of Pedder Street, during those hours on May 12 and 13.

Kennedy Road will be open to light vehicular traffic on May 12, 13 and 14.

TSUI WAI PUI LOSES IN BERLIN

Kho Sin-kie In Fine Form

(Special To "Sunday Herald")

BERLIN, YESTERDAY. TSUI WAI-PUI, THE YOUNG HONG KONG TENNIS STAR, WHO REPRESENTED CHINA IN THEIR UNSUCCESSFUL DAVIS CUP CONTEST WITH NEW ZEALAND, HAS BEEN ELIMINATED FROM THE MEN'S SINGLES IN THE INTERNATIONAL TOURNAMENT NOW BEING PLAYED HERE.

Tsui lost to Spychala (Poland) in straight sets, the scores being 6-2, 6-2.

Tsui also lost in the Men's Doubles when, partnered by Fabian (Germany) he was defeated by Uden (Germany) and Palmieri (Italy) by 6-2, 6-2.

KHO'S FINE FORM

Kho Sin-kie, China's ranking No. 1 player, however, made up for these failures by entering the last eight in the Men's Singles.

Kho, who is playing on top of his form, is conceded a chance of reaching the finals.

Yesterday he played two matches and won both of them.

Kho beat Bratek (Poland) by 6-2, 6-4 and then went on to defeat Gerstel (Germany) by 6-2, 6-2.

In the Mixed Doubles, Kho, playing with a Dutch girl, Miss Terwindt, beat Beltermann and Fraulein Ehmer (Germany) by 6-1, 6-3.—Trans-Ocean.

It is notified that during the absence on leave of Mr. G. M. Byvanck, Acting Consul-General for the Netherlands at Hong Kong, Dr. Frans Albert van Woerden, Acting Consul-General, will be in charge of the Netherlands Consulate-General.

BLUM CALLS FOR PAUSE

Moral As Well As Economic And Financial

Enthusiastic Scenes In The Chamber

(SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD")

Paris, Yesterday.

"The French State cannot continue in the same manner as during the past few years, since no Power can constantly exceed its Budget and obtain a yearly deficit equal to the Budget itself."

THIS DECLARATION WAS MADE BY THE PREMIER, M. LEON BLUM, IN HIS EAGERLY AWAITED ADDRESS BEFORE THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES YESTERDAY.

DEFENDING HIS POLICY OF ESTABLISHING A "PAUSE" IN THE NATION'S ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL AFFAIRS, M. BLUM STATED: "NOT ONLY AN ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL PAUSE IS NECESSARY BUT A MORAL ONE AS WELL."

The Premier asserted that the effects of the pause were satisfactory, although the acceleration in business was not rapid enough to effect financial recovery.

"The French Government," he continued, "regards extension of the pause as beneficial and necessary."

"Provision for further large public works is impossible," he declared, "because a total of 8,000,000,000 francs was provided for this purpose in 1937."

ANTI-DUMPING BILL

He then announced a new Bill empowering the Government to regulate import duties in such manner as to combat dumping by other nations.

The Bill will be brought before the Chamber in a few days.

At the conclusion of his address M. Blum was enthusiastically acclaimed by the deputies of the Popular Front and the Centre, though the Right Wing either indulged in the usual cat-calls or remained silent.—Trans-Ocean.

CANTON ELECTRIC UNDERTAKING

Expected To Be Ready For Operation Soon

Canton, Yesterday. The erection of the plant of the Canton Electric Company, the new municipal undertaking at Chan Pu, in the western suburbs, is rapidly proceeding.

The huge workshop is expected to be ready for operations in about two months.—Our Own Correspondent.

The King and Queen will spend this week-end at Windsor, reports British Wireless.

Mr. F. V. Read, who has been appointed official commentator for ZBW on the local processions in connection with the Coronation festivities in the Colony.

GUESTS AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE

Royal Visitors To Coronation

London, Yesterday. The following foreign Royalty will be guests of the King and Queen at Buckingham Palace for the Coronation:—

Prince and Princess Paul of Yugoslavia,
Princess Juliana and Princess Lippe,
Prince Frederick of Prussia,
Prince Paul of Greece,
The Prince of Preslav, Brother of the King of Bulgaria,
The Comte de Flanders,
The Crown Prince of Rumania,
The Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Sweden, Prince Ernest Augustus of Hanover and
The Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Norway.—British Wireless.

LOCAL CHURCH AND BIRTH CONTROL

St. Andrew's And H.K.
Eugenics League

The May issue of "The Andrian," monthly magazine of St. Andrew's Church, comes out in favour of birth control.

We are very glad, says an editorial comment, that the Eugenics League is making such good headway in Hong Kong and that so many respected and leading people in the Colony (many of them professing Christian people) are taking such an interest in it.

We know that the things for which it stands are still bitterly opposed in some circles (chiefly in some religious circles) but we are convinced that an increasing number of good and thoughtful people are being converted to its point of view. Few people who have worked amongst the poor either here or elsewhere and have seen the pitiful distress both to the children and the parents that is brought by having too large families can be opponents of the principles of the Eugenics League.

We are fully aware of all the arguments on the other side but they do not carry the case. The sooner we learn that it is quality and not quantity that matters, that we should have no fear—not even the fear of the moral effects of possible selfishness, and that the church possesses no prohibitive principle from Jesus on the matter, the quicker we should be prepared to give our support to a movement whose principles, if acted upon, would do much to solve many of the basic economic and other problems which confront the modern world.

Starches Sugars

...ENEMIES
LOVELY
TEETH

Starches and sugars tend to promote acids that cause tooth decay. Yet they are present in the daily diet and you cannot avoid them. But if you brush your teeth each day with Squibb Dental Cream you can counteract their harmful effect.

Squibb Dental Cream has a scientific action. It is alkaline and neutralizes germ acids, thus helping preserve the teeth. It also cleans correctly without the use of abrasives, astringents or anything injurious to the enamel or the most delicate gums. Follow the example of millions of people and guard teeth and health with this efficacious, pleasant tasting, economical dentifrice.

HINDENBURG SABOTAGE

Possibility Ruled Out By German Air Attache

Another Member Of Crew Dies In Hospital

Twisted Mass of Wreckage Impounded for Inquiry

Lakehurst, Yesterday.

The German air attache in Washington, after a personal investigation of the wreckage of the dirigible Hindenburg, telephoned a report to the Embassy to-day excluding the possibility of sabotage with an incendiary bullet.

Ignition of hydrogen, which was allowed to escape as the airship descended, is generally considered the most likely cause of the fire.

Whether the gas was ignited by a spark, static electricity, lightning or an engine backfire may never be known.

MEANWHILE, THE TWISTED MASS OF BURNT OUT WRECKAGE WHICH IS ALL THAT IS LEFT OF GERMANY'S FINEST ZEPPELIN, HAS BEEN IMPOUNDED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE FOR INVESTIGATION.

The results of the investigation will be known on Monday at the public hearings of the board of enquiry, to which the German Embassy has been invited to send a representative to act as observer.

Another member of the crew of the ill-fated airship died in hospital late last night and the death-roll, as officially announced, has now been raised to 33.—Reuter.

(Special To "Sunday Herald")

THOROUGH INQUIRY

Berlin, Yesterday. Dr. Hugo Eckener, speaking over the radio yesterday evening, said that only a thorough investigation would be able to establish what had caused the tragic disaster to the Hindenburg at Lakehurst.

"It stands to reason," he said, "that the question of a possible act of sabotage, the thought of which occurred to me at the first moment, will have to be seriously examined."

"In view of the excellent organisation measures of the American Government, this theory is only very slight, and it is more probable that electrical disturbances due, perhaps, to the state of the weather, played a part in the disaster."

INSURANCE CLAIM

It is now learned in Berlin that the Hindenburg was insured for 6,000,000 reichsmarks by a group of German insurance companies.

Owing to reinsurance, this amount had been covered in London to the extent of marks 2,500,000.

Furthermore, the Zeppelin Company makes a practice of taking out a life insurance policy to the amount of 30,000 marks for each passenger.

A striking picture of the Hindenburg caught in the arc of a searchlight.

Weather Likely To Improve

The Royal Observatory reported last evening that the anti-cyclone has probably commenced to move eastward; the depression has moved into the Pacific to the south-east of Tokyo. Forecast:—E. winds, fresh to moderate; cloudy with drizzle, probably improving.

BRITISH FLEET FOR PACIFIC

VITAL IMPERIAL CONFERENCE DISCUSSIONS

It is expected that, during discussions with the Dominion Premiers and Ministers in London for the Coronation and Imperial Conference, Britain will announce a new naval policy, involving the formation of two big fleets, including one for the Western Pacific.

THERE IS REASON TO BELIEVE THAT INFORMAL DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN THE MINISTERS, WHO ARE NOW ALL ASSEMBLED AND WHO MET THE KING AT WESTMINSTER HALL ON FRIDAY HAVE ALREADY BEGUN.

One of the first issues to be explored concerns the Royal Australian Navy. Australia will have to decide whether her squadron will be absorbed in the Pacific fleet and future building programmes designed as a direct contribution to its strength, or whether she will continue her present policy of maintaining a separate squadron designed purely to defend her own shores.

If it is decided to support the Western Pacific Fleet policy, destroyers will be built in Melbourne almost immediately. If, on the other hand, the Australian Squadron is to remain independent, sloops will be laid down.

SIR ARCHDALE PARKHILL'S MISSION

These important questions are being first discussed between representatives of the British Government and the Australian Minister for Defence (Sir Archdale Parkhill).

The Commonwealth Government has been advised that the British Government representatives will place the facts of the international and British defence policy before the Empire statesman. In the light of that information, they must decide naval policy.

Hitherto the Royal Australian Navy has been developed as a separate squadron. In times of peace Australian ships have patrolled Australian waters, but there has always been co-operation with the British Navy in times of emergency.

Now it is being suggested that the policy of co-operation with the British Navy should be extended so that, in future, Australian naval construction programmes and the types of ship to be built will be determined by the requirements of Imperial naval policy, and not purely by Australian defence needs. It is believed that this point will be emphasised by a declaration by Britain that her new naval construction programme aims at the completion of two strong fleets—one to defend the heart of the Empire, and the other to defend India, Australia, and New Zealand.

The present Australian Squadron includes three modern cruisers, the Canberra, Sydney, and Australia, and two modern sloops, the Yarra and the Swan. An older type of sloop, H.M.A.S. Moresby, is used as a survey ship. There are four destroyers, and the flotilla leader, H.M.A.S. Stuart, but these are all old types, so that, unless new ships of this class are built, Australia will soon have only obsolete destroyers.

"MOST ECONOMICAL BASIS"

The work of the Committee of Imperial Defence in London, under the secretaryship of Sir Maurice Hankey, has aimed at an effective co-ordination of Empire naval development, and the speeches of the Federal Minister for Defence (Sir Archdale Parkhill) before he left Australia for the Imperial Conference made it clear that the next step in Australia's naval policy would be taken after full consultation with the Governments of Britain and of the other dominions at that conference.

Sir Archdale declared definitely that the Commonwealth Government stood for co-operation in Imperial Defence, subject, of course, to the sovereign control of its own policy, and without prior commitment in any way. "As no dominion is capable of providing entirely for its security by its own efforts alone, Imperial co-operation is the most economical basis for defence," he said.

COMBINED EXERCISES

The combined exercises that are at present being carried out in New Zealand waters by the Australian squadron and ships of the New Zealand station indicate a practical application of this policy. Similar exercises were carried out last year in Australian waters, and naval authorities both in Australia and New Zealand have testified to their great value for training purposes.

The wider Western Pacific scheme that will be discussed in London is regarded in naval circles as the logical sequel to the completion of the Singapore base and to recent developments in international naval discussions, particularly the attitude of non-co-operation adopted by Japan.

Recent plans for the strengthening of the Hong Kong station are taken to indicate that the British Pacific fleet, operating from Singapore as its base, will be organised in northern and southern arms, the southern bases being Sydney and New Zealand.

LORD SWINTON'S MESSAGE

London, Yesterday. Viscount Swinton, Secretary for Air, has sent the following message of condolence to the German Air Minister: "I desire to express on my behalf and on that of British aviation, sincere sympathy on the tragic disaster to the airship Hindenburg."—British Wireless.

Top Off Tomorrow's Dinner with a Sparkling Dessert

By FRANCES LEE BARTON

Any Meal is More Enjoyable When it Ends With a Gay, Tasty Dessert

Doesn't it occur to you, every now and then, that your meals are getting to be pretty much alike?

Well, there's no better way to give bright variety to your daily menus than to serve good-looking delicious desserts. They liven up the whole meal, cost very little, and are easy to make. It's amazing what you can do, for instance, with some fresh or tinned fruits and a package of Jell-O.

When you combine fruits or nuts with Jell-O, the first thing to keep in mind is that some are heavier than Jell-O, and sink to the bottom of the mould, and others are lighter, and stay on top. Of course you want your fruits and nuts distributed evenly through the mould, so be sure to use different types. These lists will help:

These Sink in Jell-O

Tinned cherries, peaches, pineapples, raspberries, blackberries, apricots, cooked prunes, maraschino cherries.

These Float in Jell-O

Broken almonds, broken, pecans, sliced

apple, fresh grapefruit, sliced banana, fresh oranges, fresh strawberries (cut in half) sliced pears, marshmallows.

Now take the fruits you have, and your favourite Jell-O flavour, and try one of these recipes. For instance:

Orange and Maraschino Mould

1 package Lemon or Orange Jell-O
1 pint warm water
4 maraschino cherries, cut in eighths
2 oranges, sections free from membrane

Dissolve Jell-O in warm water. Arrange cherries in bottom of mould. Pour on warm Jell-O, being careful not to disarrange cherries. Add orange sections. Chill until firm. Unmould. Serves 6.

Here is another recipe, just as lovely to look at; just as delicious:

Layered Peach and Banana Mould

1 package Lime Jell-O
1 pint warm water
1 1/2 cup tinned sliced peaches
1 banana, sliced

Dissolve Jell-O in warm water. Arrange sliced peaches on bottom of mould. Pour on warm Jell-O, being careful not to disarrange peaches. Add banana. Chill until firm. Unmould. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6.

Either of these desserts will surely please your family. Try them once and you'll repeat them often!

VATICAN'S REPLY TO BERLIN

Denunciation Follows Cabinet Discussion

PHILOSOPHY OF UNIVERSALISM CRITICISED

(SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD")

Berlin, Yesterday.

"Germany continues to decline most emphatically to permit interference in her domestic affairs or to have them dragged up for discussion in the international forum."

THIS SEMI-OFFICIAL STATEMENT WAS MADE IN BERLIN FOLLOWING CABINET DISCUSSION OF THE VATICAN'S REPLY TO THE GERMAN NOTE OF APRIL 15 WITH REGARD TO THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL ACCUSING THE REICH OF VIOLATION OF THE CONCORDAT.

IT WAS REVEALED THAT ONE OF THE POINTS MADE IN THE VATICAN'S REPLY, SUPPRESSED TILL NOW, WAS THAT "THE CHURCH HAS APPLIED ALL ITS FORCES TO ADVANCE THE WELFARE OF THE PEOPLES OF THE EARTH."

Political quarters reply to this by stating that the claim is not borne out by history. "Bolshevism," it is pointed out in Berlin, "has sought to establish or has already established itself primarily in purely Catholic countries."

"This happened in Bavaria in 1919, in Italy prior to the Fascist revolution, in Hungary at the time of Bela Kun's regime and today in Spain."

"The philosophy of universalism as upheld by the Roman Catholic Church implies negation of national forces and furnishes certain preliminary conditions for the growth of international Bolshevism."

CHURCH PRESUMPTION

"Germany, as a sovereign State, cannot tolerate Church presumption to criticise the conduct of affairs of State."

"The Vatican frustrated German willingness to negotiate with the Church in 1934, when it said that political reasons made mutual discussions impossible."

"The appeal to the German Government (in the Vatican's reply) to uphold the Christian ethical code in all its actions induces one to ask who is to set up a solely valid maxim for these presuppositions, seeing that only one-third of the German people is Roman Catholic and two-thirds members of the German Evangelical Church."

FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE

"It is not feasible to make the principles and dogmas of the Catholic Church the basis of State policy in a country where there is freedom of conscience and of religion."

"It is therefore unreasonable to suppose that either for moral or political reasons, the Nazi State should be the instrument for carrying out the wishes of the Vatican, seeing that the Reich Government is concerned with creation of a new German racial organisation and with the welfare of the nation as a whole."

The Vatican's reply to the German Note, it was revealed yesterday, was dated April 30 but was not handed to the German representative at the Vatican till May 4.

NOT WORLD APPEAL

It is believed that the Pope rejects the protest of the Reich Government that the encyclical was an interference in German domestic affairs, and says that only religious motives led to dispatch of the encyclical.

The encyclical, the Pope states, was not in the nature of an appeal to world opinion, and as such an attempt to establish a front directed against Germany.

"It is reliably stated in Berlin that the Pope says that Nazi propaganda is likewise carried on beyond Germany's frontiers."

"The Roman Catholic Church," the reply states, "is prepared to dedicate all its positive forces to the service of all peoples and therefore reserves to itself the right to raise a warning voice against Nazism as against Communism."

FRANK REPLY

In reply to the German query as to why the encyclical was printed and distributed in Germany supremely, the reply states frankly that "confiscation was feared."

"The Holy See thinks that improved relations between the Catholic Church and Germany are possible provided the Reich Government adopts measures to clear the political atmosphere of all anti-clerical tendencies and creates a basis for furtherance of Christianity."

In conclusion, the reply states: "The Vatican is unable to judge whether Nazism has really saved Germany from Bolshevism."—Trans-Ocean.

Treasury Bills

London, Yesterday.
The total amount applied for in tenders for $35,000,000 Treasury Bills was $32,960,000.

The average rate per cent. for the Bills at three months was 10/0.19d against 10/4.18d a week ago.—British Wireless.

Italian Anger Aroused

Rome, Yesterday.
The Italian newspapers have decided to recall their correspondents in London.

So says an unconfirmed report in Rome, which adds that the action is intended as a gesture of protest against the "defamatory attitude" of English newspapers towards Italy and the "question" of Italian volunteers in Spain.—Trans-Ocean.

Science's Refinement Of Death

Moscow, Yesterday.

A new weapon of war has been discovered by three professors of the War Industry Research Institute in Moscow.

The discovery is a fluid which can be converted to gas with exceptional rapidity and can kill all human beings within an extensive radius.

It is stated that the earth partially absorbs the gas and that the full effects can still be felt after several days.

No existing gas-mask, it is stated, ensures adequate protection against the "new" poison.—Trans-Ocean.

Dr. Kotewall Returns

The Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, who has been spending a holiday in coast ports in south-west China, has returned to Hong Kong.

Basque Front Fighting

Vitoria, Yesterday.

Military operations on the Basque front have brought further successes to the insurgents, who drove the Basque defenders from their sole remaining positions in the Sollube Mountains, which are now completely in rebel hands.

ATROCITY CHARGES

Paris, Yesterday.

The insurgents are retaliating to Republican accusations of atrocities by similar charges against the loyalists.

Yesterday, says a communique issued in Salamanca, Republican planes tried to bomb the Cathedral at Saragossa.

The bombs missed their objective but many civilians were killed.

On the Biscay front, adds the communique, the insurgents have occupied several important heights and villages. The Basques lost 80 killed and 24 prisoners, as well as much war material.—Trans-Ocean.

The village of Mennat, at the southern extremity of this range of hills, has also been captured by the insurgents.

The rebel positions in the vicinity of Durango have been consolidated and some quarters think this is a sign that the large-scale drive on Durango may be resumed in the near future.—Trans-Ocean.

GOOD HEALTH

"My whole family has benefited so much by the use of Kalzana that I only wish more would give it a trial," writes Mrs. U., London.

Mineral starvation is the cause of many troubles: children are often pale, irritable and handicapped by a slow development of bones and weak teeth; women suffer from irregular periods, pains and headaches; men are dizzy and tired after a hard day's work.

Kalzana—the mineral food for better health—supplies the necessary minerals to the cells of the muscles, blood, and nerves. By doing so, it strengthens the whole organism and increases its power of resistance in cases of illness and weakness. Good health is the best guarantee of happiness for the whole family.

Gin Slings Are The Limit Of The Horizon Of Many Hong Kong People,
Says the Rev. J.D. Maclean, Discussing

Cabbages and Kings

Most of us will recall Lewis Carroll's immortal nonsense,

The time has come, the Walrus said,
To talk of many things,
Of shoes and ships and sealing-wax,
And cabbages and kings.

Such a heterogeneous collection of things is a fairly accurate picture of the average individual's conception of life—a manifold and meaningless conglomeration of "things."

It is because of this ill-assorted

ment that Carroll's nonsense strikes our minds with a distinct ly real significance.

We are unable intelligently to assess the comparative values of cabbages and kings.

Our race whose ancestors constructed the Gothic Cathedrals is now busy piling up the most ill-assorted muckheap that the world has ever seen. For four years, so deep were our minds sunk, that we manured the fields of France and Flanders with the finest human bodies we could lay our hands upon.

Using the matured knowledge of centuries we are struggling to evolve a technique which will disfigure and destroy the loveliest things which God and man have created.

By prostituting the excellent achievements of Science in the most radically efficient manner each nation among us hopes to win the kingship of the muckheap.

That is not by any means an understatement. It has been authoritatively admitted that war mongering has done more to encourage scientific development than the existence of centuries old yet still unconquered disease.

Intelligent Loyalty

Is it then altogether surprising that in our fleeting moments of seriousness we find it difficult, nay utterly impossible often, to make head or tail of anything? And if we do not understand how can we give an intelligent loyalty where loyalty is demanded?

Writing in 'The Modern Churchman' in May 1935, the Editor commences, "In the modern world men are quick to complain, swift to despise, eager for novelty. Thankfulness for blessings we enjoy is not our characteristic." But how can we be thankful for blessings when we are doubtful if what are called blessings have any reality—in the instance of 'Churchman's' remarks, the continued existence of a royal family in Britain. Continuing his article, he goes on to say that "Every good British sovereign, among other blessings, preserves and strengthens the British Constitution—a Constitution which, without undue insular pride, we may regard as the best political constitution in the world." It is, as Edmund Burke emphasized, the product of a long and remarkable political experience, and has been created only as the result of numberless practical experiments and adjustments.

'Churchman' assumes that we ought to agree with his citation of Burke as the last word, but do we?

Constitution And System

When we are forced to remember the British Constitution, we do not usually think of it as the result of the self-sacrificing efforts of countless British Kings and Queens, but as the haphazard political system which has permitted Medieval Feudalism to change into modern Capitalism without taking very much intelligent control of the development. We think of it as the system which guarantees economic security to the civil servant wage-earning class, which allows another minority to attain security through robbery and exploitation, and condemns the majority of the British population to starvation or futile struggling for a mere subsistence pittance.

The efforts of even the best of kings—and has the world ever known a better than George the Fifth—have left the system unaltered in any radical way, for the plain truth is that the King has no more influence upon the Constitution than you or I have.

The choice which the Constitution offers us is threefold, we may either sink our idealism and our religion and become its servants, or prove ourselves successful exploiters, or rejoice in freedom which for many thousands means starvation.

Wasted In Idleness

Like a frail fungus, the individual who can accept none of these, lives as best he can. Around him men and women waste in idleness or despair.

For the majority of English people in Hong Kong life has assumed the significance of a gin-bitters or a whisky-dry.

The muck-heap continues to accumulate muck.

In every nation in the world where the capitalist system (which is sponsored by the British Constitution) controls, masses of men and women and children are huddled into befouled and congested industrial areas where they are condemned to eat the crumbs which fall from the tables of plutocrats.

Peak And
The Slums

You will see what I mean if you will think on the over-crowded Chinese areas of the Colony and the spaciousness of the Peak. These children of Lazarus, the exploited poor of all races, have been subdued and kept subdued by the shibboleths of vested interests, but their deepest tragedy is that they have learned to love putrescence before beauty and in their natural acquisitiveness they have had to be satisfied with the possession of rottenness.

And it is we of the West who have worked this catastrophe upon the world. Feeding like rats on our machine-guns we gain the world from Liverpool to Hong Kong and round again to Bethnal Green, the proud dictators of muckdom.

Limit To Endurance

But there is a limit to mankind's power to endure this travesty of government. Every day from every corner of the capitalist world the cry from suffering humanity grows louder and louder, and here and there men's minds grow sickened at what they see and read of the muckheaps, they are tired of the existence where "shoes and ships and sealing-wax and cabbages and kings" jostle each other to increase distraction to the point of madness.

What enthusiasm can such minds summon for a coronation, however much it may appreciate the idea of Kingship, when they see the redeeming efforts of Princes discarded and overturned by the lords of muckdom in the interest of their own lordships?

God knows that there is enough strife in our world, and may I never be forgiven if I add to it, but the existing divisions and distinctions between men are false, snobbish and meaningless. The intellectual scorns the 'ignorant', the skilled worker turns away from his unskilled brother, the civilized cannot mix with the backward and the 'coloured' any more than the necessities of exploitation allow, money cultured despises the poor, and everywhere equilibrium is impossible.

To make the world healthy all men of all classes creeds and colours will have to roll up their sleeves and through united labour strive to reach a true rock foundation for future generations to build upon. It is going to be an unpleasant task for a considerable time, all the foulness which men and women have heaped and are continuing to heap up, will have to be scattered to the winds of heaven before the sweetening and constructive work can be begun.

The revolutionary to-day will only be a site clearer, but in his heart the new world belongs to him for in his heart he lives in it already.

Sweat and toil, despair and injustice will undoubtedly be his lot, but if his rebellion is religious and is not begotten on hate and selfishness he will be happy in his lot whatever comes for his life will be hid in God.

The Task Of Rebellion

This task of rebellion will be a purifying task. In their efforts to rid the world of filth the individuals who undertake it will be purged of all false values themselves. Dispossessed and insecure, they alone will be able to make freedom and security a reality in the lives of all men. Creation and not revenge will be their motive, love and not hate their power. The acquisitive mentality of the capitalist will be abomination to them, for their desire will be to build anew without thought of personal profit. Their vows, though unspoken, will be stricter than those of men's priests.

They will give to Kingship the value which modern rulers have refused it, and in coronation offer the votive loyalty of their lives to him, who by virtue of his manhood, is the leader of their lives.

A few years ago men united to destroy life, how long will it be before they unite to create, to destroy the power of false gods and to make known the loveliness of life in God?

"CORONATION"

In a world of doubt and fear, War, greed and strife, the atmosphere,
Rolling clouds are drawn aside,
Glorious sunshine, Peace with us to hide.

No hatred, envy, here to nurse
This gathering, in the centre of the Universe,
Peer and Yeoman, with one voice acclaim
The beginning of a King's new Reign.
Greatest Land, Thou to whom gave birth
Valiant Sons, most blessed upon this earth,
From far-flung Empire and Britain's shady dale,
Love and Loyalty, yours to never fail.

Made as the rock which girds our mighty shore
Comes forth the homage that you pour,
Oh God, in Thy mercy pray we to save,
King, Queen and Country,—Heritage.

HONGKONG COULD BE CAPTURED IN A FORTNIGHT

HAINAN ISLAND AS RESERVE BASE: TOKYO RUMOURS

Japanese suspicions that British interest in the economic development of Hainan is associated with an understanding between Britain and China, whereby an important British naval base will be developed on the island, persist in spite of denials of any ulterior motive in British interest in the island.

THE JAPANESE REPORTS INSIST THAT BRITAIN HAS OBTAINED PRIVILEGES AMOUNTING TO "MILITARY RIGHTS" IN HAINAN, IN RETURN FOR FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE UNDER THE EXPORTS CREDITS SCHEME TO HAINAN AND KWANTUNG.

The persistence of the rumours gives a glimpse of the nervousness with which Japan is awaiting Britain's next move in the Far East—Britain's counter to the Japanese refusal to renew naval treaties, which restricted gun calibres but, more important, which also had banned the extension or improvement of naval bases in the Pacific.

The report has also intrinsic significance in that it suggests a possible new British outpost, and one which would greatly strengthen the Empire's position in the Far East; and suggests, at the least, that the answer to the new conditions created by Japan will be to establish a new stronghold in an area where Britain's security depends upon the placing and the power of her fortresses.

Distance Factor

The pre-eminent factor in British (and American) strategy in the Far East is distance. Britain, and also the United States, have vital interests in an area which could not be reached by their main naval forces in less than two months, according to authorities of good standing. Once there, these naval forces would be based on widely-separated ports, none of which can be considered impregnable.

In the same area Japan occupies a position that, from a military point of view, presents perhaps unique advantages. "It is doubtful," wrote Captain W. H. Thring, who was chief of the Australian naval war staff in the Great War, "if we have ever exercised a more complete command in any important area than Japan possesses to-day in Far Eastern waters." To emphasise the importance of the distance factor in these waters he added: "For our fleet to use Singapore as a base against this line of advance (Japan towards Australia) is much the same as using Portsmouth as the base for a fleet off the coast of the United States."

Limited Radius of Modern Ships
Singapore is 3000 miles from the chief harbours of Japan; yet a battleship can steam only about 6000 miles at full power, a destroyer only 900. Singapore is 1440 miles from Hong Kong; even cruisers, if they were forced by submarines and aircraft to make the voyage at high speed, would be perilously short of fuel if they were denied access to Hong Kong at the end of such a journey.

The establishment of a second China base, on Hainan, for example, would vastly strengthen Hong Kong. Captain Bernard Acworth, R.N., has expressed the opinion that, in the present circumstances, Hong Kong, which could be assailed by a Japanese force four days after an outbreak of war, could be captured in a fortnight.

The existence of a second base in the same area and within flying distance of Hong Kong would make such an attack a risky expedition. To-day, an aggressor knows that effective interference from the three-days-distant base of Singapore is unlikely. Certainly that the attacking forces would be harassed by submarines and aircraft from a nearby base on the Singapore side of Hong Kong would be a considerable deterrent.

Aircraft Needs

The improvement in the range and carrying capacity of aircraft, though it causes Britain-in-Europe to look into the future with trepidation, is likely only to give new strength to Britain overseas. Aircraft provide a swiftly moving weapon, which laughs at distance, makes large-scale aggressive operations, specially by sea, hazardous in the extreme. But aircraft, even more than men-of-war, are dependent on bases, and thus, in an oil-driven world, Britain's security depends more than ever before, far more than in the days of wind-power, on the security of her armed outposts.

It is possible, therefore, that if the Imperial Conference gives a new direction to Imperial strategy, it will be by reaffirmation of the importance of mobility, and mobility depends to-day on the multitude and the power of resistance of the stopping places at which sea and air forces can shelter and refuel and refit.

"Obstacles Not Insurmountable"

Two years ago, before Japan's withdrawal from naval treaties was certain, Mr. Hector Bywater, who speaks with almost official authority, wrote this significant passage: "The geographical obstacles which impede the defence of British interests in the Pacific are serious, but not insurmountable. Singapore and the Australian ports are not the only bases from which a British fleet, steadily reinforced as it would be, might project its power in an ever-extending arc. For obvious reasons, it is not advisable to name all the territories which represent potential British bases in the Western Pacific. Several, distinct from Singapore, Darwin, etc., have been publicly mentioned; others, less obvious to the casual observer, are well known to the naval strategist."

A Unique Book On China

"400 MILLION CUSTOMERS"
BY CARL CROW

Mr. Carl Crow, in serving 400 million customers, has enjoyed himself exceedingly, and what is more, has succeeded in communicating his enjoyment to his readers. In his preface, Mr. Crow seeks justification for adding one more book to the libraries on China written by travellers, statesmen, humorists, philosophers, economists, and representatives of dozens of branches of highly specialised knowledge. But no apology is needed.

A copy should be in the suitcase of every man coming out to China to earn a living. Not only will he be vastly entertained on the voyage but he will land with a knowledge of the Chinese and Chinese business methods which no other book supplies in such a delightful way. Written by a man whose business acumen is tempered by a great sense of humour, "400 Million Customers" is a sympathetic study which gives both the old and the new hand in China, a new understanding of the over-interesting, exasperating, puzzling, and, almost always, lovable Chinese people as Mr. Carl Crow has known them. Prosperity and adversity in China have tempered his enthusiasm but never it would seem, his optimism nor his humour.

The book is packed with interesting, and the oddest information, and there is a fund of excellent stories. Disillusionment there is too. "We never knew for example, that 'chop suey' is not a Chinese national dish at all, but more or less an American invention. Nor did we realise how our supply of good tooth-brushes depends on the health and prosperity of the Szechuen pig, or how ex-London bus metal advertisements are transformed into cooking-stoves."

DOUBLED UP WITH STOMACH PAIN!

Now a "New Man"

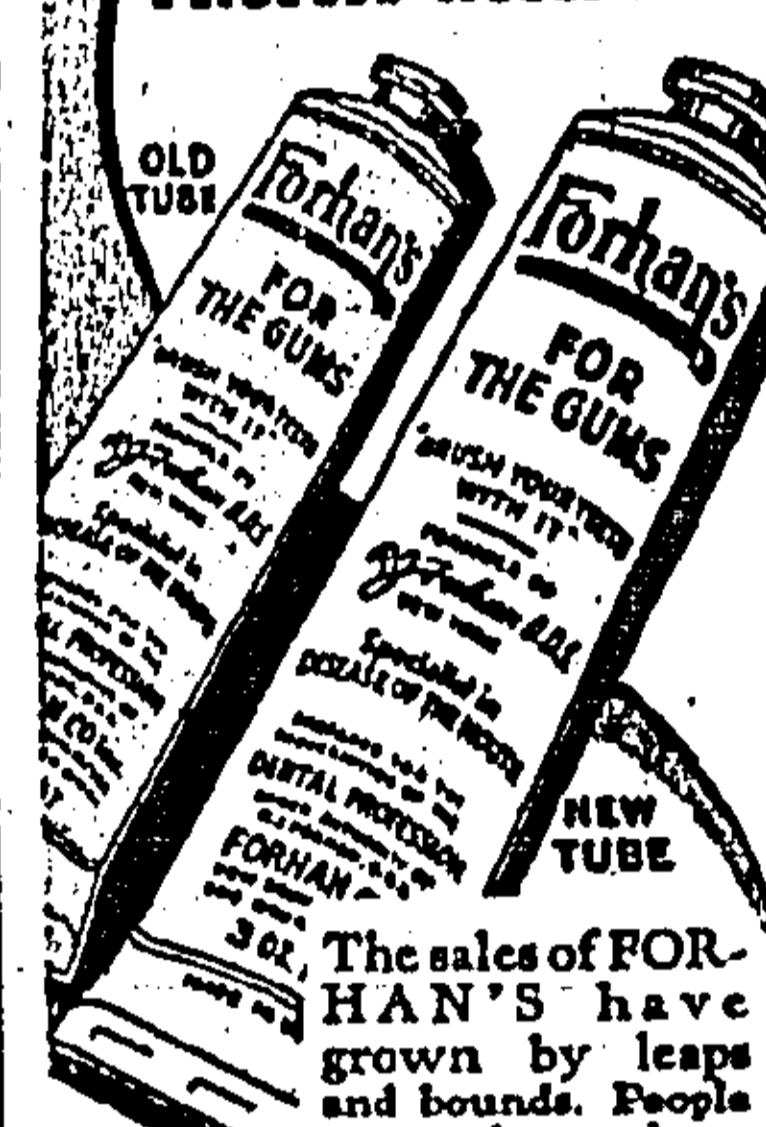

Do you endure agonies from stomach trouble? Do you dread to eat even the simplest meals and long for relief from your pain? Then here is good news for you. For sure relief is at hand as this letter proves. It comes from Mr. J. W.:

"Having now fully recovered from severe stomach pains, I felt I could not sit down again and enjoy my meals—which I have been unable to eat without suffering great pain—without writing and sincerely thanking your wonderful Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. I started trying all sorts of tonics and remedies, but they only eased the pain for a time and then back it came as bad as ever."

"One night I came home doubled up with pain. My sister told me that a friend had been suffering with stomach troubles and recommended your Powder—so as a last desperate trial I sent out for it. I can honestly say it has made a new man of me, so I thank you once again for that wonderful Powder of yours, the best of all remedies for stomach sufferers."

What Maclean Brand Stomach Powder has done in this case it can do for you. Get a bottle to-day—but be careful to avoid cheap substitutes. Ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, and see the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle and carton. Never sold loose. Also in tablet form. If any difficulty in obtaining. Write to: Banker & Co., Ltd. P. O. Box 536, Hong Kong.

THE AIRPLANE GANGSTER

(Par: 10 min.)

Pat Rooney, a notorious gangster, was caught in a Chicago hotel last week and questioned. He said he had decided to go straight, and was so convincing in his manner that the police were about to release him, when they found a letter on him addressed to one, John Shay. Upon opening it they saw the following map, which appeared to be an airplane route map. Rooney was asked about this map and although his answers were satisfactory, when the map was given to the code detector, he found it conveyed an important message. Rooney was arrested and sent to jail. Can you decipher the message?

THINK COW IT IS DONE

(Par: 2 min.)

A farmer died leaving his entire herd of cattle to his 5 sons on the following conditions:

Son John to get 1/3rd of the herd; Son Tom to get 1/4th of the herd; Son Henry to get 1/6th of the herd; Son Bill to get 1/8th of the herd; Son George to get 1/9th of the herd.

Of course, the cattle could not be divided up the way the will specified, so a kind neighbour was called in to help out. The kind neighbour loaned two of his cows, and everything came out okay. Each son received his exact share of the cattle according to the will, and the kind neighbour took back his two cows after the division was over.

How many cows were there in the farmer's herd and what was each son's share?
What is wrong with the problem?

Insert the word indicated by definition number 1. Add the right letter to the word, rearrange the letters, and you have the answer to definition number 2. Then drop the right letter from number 1, rearrange the remaining letters, and you get the word called for by definition number 3. Repeat for each group of three words. Print the letters added and dropped in the vertical columns on the left and right, respectively. You'll find these letters of help and productive of interesting sidelights.

And now, able double-crossers, at the end of 28 minutes, will find that most of us have the products of this puzzle.

THE CHRISM

AMID all the distracting details of Coronation ceremonial it is as well that we should devote a short spell of recollection to the inner meaning of the great ceremony that is to be enacted this week, and to the central act of that ceremony, — the anointing of the King with the Holy Oil. Even the placing of the Crown on the King's head is but an outward sign that the anointing has been duly performed, and all the other symbols such as the orb and the sceptre and the oaths of allegiance are accessories.

The remark would be quite natural that as the documents signed by the King since the Royal Authority was vested in him by the Act of Parliament which contained his brother's abdication as an appendix are perfectly valid, nothing more would seem to be required. The answer would be that neither the English nor the Scots nor any of their overseas kindred are at all inclined to discard their history, and without the sacred rite the monarchy would be cutting itself off from a tradition that is much older than Parliament, and which has a function in the working of the political organism quite distinct from any other of our institutions. It has been our racial experience that as times change it is far easier to adapt an old thing that has been allowed to survive than to create a new thing to meet new and puzzling difficulties, and never has that been made more clear than in the last twenty years. In all the larger communities of British people that had grown up overseas, — that is to say in the Colonies that had been successful, — there was a more and more insistent feeling that even when no substantial grievance existed it was illogical that the final control of their affairs should be in the hands of an elective body that had as its first duty to look after the affairs of its own constituents. What was to be done? Separation? Very few wanted that, for combination had many advantages in defence and in peaceful negotiation. The suspicion that attached to the elective Parliament did not extend to the Throne. Just as during the reigns of the Plantagenets and the Tudors all the struggles had been between the King and his people on the one side and the nobles on the other, so during the last century there had been an alliance of sympathy and practical help between the humbler classes of the distant lands and the Monarch, for he was not dependant either for position or for influence on money or votes. The slogan of the educated natives of South Africa is "give us back the laws of Queen Victoria." That may sound reactionary. It would to-day mean quite a big advance.

The result of the recent constitutional changes is that a new and rather overwhelming responsibility rests on King George VI., for his father never had to meet the crucial test where the advice given to him by two of his Ministries was directly opposed. With good management the case need never arise, but the chance of it is always in the background, and it appears to be the object of the Irish Government to explore all the undefined sections of our very elastic constitution.

Though the occasions for the exercise of personal decision by the King may be rare, — such as the grant of a dissolution or the sending for a new Prime Minister, — they are always important. The routine work is enormous, and it is high time that care should be taken to lighten it. The work of adding endless signatures to state documents, commissions, and similar paper is not half so important as keeping in personal touch with prominent and representative men. No matter what changes of procedure may be introduced the work must remain very exacting, and to any conscientious man there must always be some self-questioning as to whether he is making the best of his opportunities of influence. It is natural therefore that the rite of consecration, by which he is set apart for the service of his people, should make an eye-powering appeal to the imagination. The solemn rite takes us back to times when a knight prepared himself by lonely vigil of a night before he received the accolade, and it might be wished that something of the same impressive and serious dignity had been preserved. It is mere frivolity to say that neither knight nor king consistently lived up to his solemn pledge. None of us lives up to our own highest ideal, but we are none the worse for having one.

Fears of a national coal stoppage in Britain were allayed following a profoundly impressive appeal to sentimentality by Mr. Stanley Baldwin. It was the Prime Minister's last important speech in the House of Commons, for he is expected to announce his retirement before Parliament reconvenes, and such was the drama of its effect that debate was silenced. The principal spokesman for the miners gave an assurance of his earnest co-operation in the cause of peace and yesterday the air had somewhat cleared. The threat remains as a sharp example of the stuff of which strikes are made. The immediate issue at Hanworth is comparatively trivial, affecting only a few score men. But the vital issue of union recognition is involved, and the miners, 500,000 strong, are prepared to go all the way to prevent violation of the principle.

London's bus strike also moved towards a peaceful settlement. Not a bus had appeared in the streets of the metropolis since midnight on April 30, but a court of inquiry, after days of high pressure study of the situation, produced a report which gave promise of a temporary understanding before the Coronation festivities are well begun. Main feature of the report was prima facie acceptance of the men's contention that the speeding up of schedules added to present-day traffic conditions were detrimental to health. Further enquiry by competent authorities was recommended in terms suggesting the Court's conviction that a complete case in the busmen's favour could be made out. On that basis, a return to work is possible, for the main object of the strike has been achieved.

Japan's elections produced no surprises. No sanction for Army domination in politics was forthcoming. On the contrary, the one openly pro-Army party, the Showakai, lost several seats and numbers only 19 in the new Diet. The Minseito, who lost a score of seats to the Social Mass and to the Sei-men and children from Bilbao, but the task was proceeded with, Britain letting it be known that she would afford the strongest single party, naval protection to refugee ships whether Franco liked it or not. The insurgent leader's reply was apparently conveyed in a warning that the British Consulate in Bilbao was situated in a danger zone, liable to aerial bombardment by General Mola's aviation squadrons.

Following his visit to Rome, Baron von Neurath felt compelled to issue a denial that an Italo-German military alliance had been negotiated. Nevertheless, Europe chancelleries continued to buzz with rumours concerning the purpose behind the succession of German visits to Italy. Attention was particularly drawn to the fact that Baron von Neurath had followed closely upon the heels, first of General von Blomberg, and then of General Goering. The official communiqué, eloquent in its failure to give any clue whatever to the trend of the discussions, stated that complete identity of viewpoints matured. Europe remained unconvinced that a military understanding had not been reached, whether or not the accord had been reduced to black and white and given the sanction of formal signatures.

The Hindenburg disaster cast a deep gloom over Germany and shocked the world at large. Calamity struck the dirigible in the presence of hundreds of eye-witnesses, yet there was a curious absence of certainty as to what exactly happened. First reports bore witness of confusion, for two or three hours after the ship's doom had been sealed, it was still believed that all but three persons aboard had perished. The tragedy is taken in Germany as an inspiration to greater efforts in airship development of guaranteed safety. In other countries, the lesson of the Hindenburg is generally interpreted as ending the airship controversy and belief in giant airships as a practical commercial proposition.

Most startling event in Spain was the anarchist rebellion in Catalonia. For two days, the revolt leaders controlled the greater part of Barcelona and it was not until some 5,000 militiamen were drafted into the city from Valencia that the Government re-established its situation. Death-roll in the fighting was placed as high as 400, with over 2,000 wounded. Immediate outcome was elimination of the Anarchist-Syndicalist group from government offices and the establishment of what appeared to be a Dictatorship of Four.

General Franco caused astonishment by declaring against the Anglo-French decision to lend aid in the humanitarian task of evacuating wounded and refugees.

THE PASSING HOUR

By
A. N. M.

IT is rather a quaint paradox that the Sovereign that at the greatest importance to his coronation ceremony of all those who have occupied the English throne was King James I., — and as a loyal Scot I must of course add "and VI." Of the book in which he argued the case for the doctrine of "The Divine Right of Kings" at least this much may be said, that none of his successors could have written either so learned or so logical a book. Queen Elizabeth, his immediate predecessor, spoke French without an accent and with great fluency, and her father, Henry VIII, even thought in French. Both of them could read Latin, as Macaulay would have said, "with their feet on the fender", which of course means without having to refer to a dictionary, and Henry did publish one book which earned for him the title "Defensor Fidei", — always borne by those who succeeded him till the last few months. In deference to Mr. De Valera some verbal alterations in the form of the oath and the title have been made with result that King George VI. will not be the Defender of the Faith in respect of Ireland, — which we must presumably accustom ourselves now to call "Eire". The change is at any rate a touch of realism, for the old form required the King to repudiate certain doctrines which to Mr. De Valera and his supporters are of the very essence of their faith. The King's father had already insisted on expunging a number of sentences which he rightly considered to be unnecessarily offensive to those of subjects who were not Protestants. It is a little disappointing that in spite of this attempt to meet reasonable objections Mr. De Valera still refuses to attend the coronation ceremony on the ground that the fact of the King's Protestantism is in itself an insult. Therein he takes a line of argument that would have been utterly repugnant to King James.

His chief work, the "Elkon Basilike," had great influence for generations, and still has, though most people are not conscious of where their idea of the complete independence of nations comes from. Japan, for example, repudiated the enormously useful Washington Treaty because it was felt to be an insult that other civilised countries should expect to be consulted about any policy adopted by their Government. Mussolini would agree as to Italy, with the reservation that Italy means himself. All the attempts to remove the causes of war have been defeated by the deep hold of this doctrine, — that the head of a Government is free from all external moral restraint, — has obtained over modern thought, and still more over modern impulse and practice. In statesmanship there should be no room for logic, and the moral principles applied without regard to moral principles and the right of other men to differ from one's own ideas.

Mr. Hilaire Belloc
Logic And Politics

We certainly owe a debt to King James's scholarship for his choice of translators for the Authorised Version of the Bible, without which our language would have been something much less dignified than it is. We may adopt the expressive slang of the movies, but we are conscious that we could say what we want to say otherwise and more beautifully if we chose. His own second book was a drastic attack on the habit of smoking tobacco, introduced by Sir Walter Raleigh. The medical science of the day traced health and disease to the proper balance of seven "humours" in the body, — blood, bile, and so on, — and he argued that the introduction of smoke into the body had the effect of drying up the more virtuous humours. There may be something in it. At any rate, even our friends of the B.A.T. would find it difficult to prove that their cigarettes dry up the vicious humours.

It was characteristic of the English temperament that the promulgation of so drastic an abstract principle produced no effect whatever on the popular mind. The misfortune was that James's son took it literally, and presumed that silence argued consent. As he paid for his mistake with his head, the constitutional argument has never been reopened.

Constitutionalism
What then is the compromise that has actually been reached? It is certainly not that the King shall be an automaton, or in the modern phrase "a rubber stamp" for the approval of official recommendations. It would take too long to analyse the influence of recent sovereigns, but it may be said in brief that it varies with the class of subject under consideration, and with the experience of the monarch, which naturally grows with each year during which he has every means of accurate information about all that goes on. It may be difficult, as many things in our Empire are difficult, to reduce to a juridical formula, but the events of the last few months have shown the respective parts played by King and Parliament so clearly that there is no room for misconception.

Health Through Physical Fitness

A Weekly Common-Sense Talk

BY L. KNIGE,

Director, Hydro-Therapeutic Institution, Hong Kong.

This Week I Discuss: Some Facts on Famous
"Cures" And "Diets"

IN this age of dieticians and continual food experiments, fads and so called "cures" by the taking of assorted foods are almost as common as the "common" cold. Many of these do far more harm than otherwise, for rigid adherence to any diet without the advice of a doctor or the application of common-sense is generally harmful. As everyone has different "likes" and "dislikes", dissimilar characters and so on, so it is with our bodies; what benefits me, may not achieve like results with you, without due consideration to the differences in our constitutions.

Purely as a matter of interest I explain some of the better known "fads". Some of them are based on scientific principles, but there is danger in most of them. In no case should they be adopted without consulting your doctor, for you may have some physical weakness in your system which makes it unsafe to take up even the simplest of diets and exercise.

THE FAMOUS MILK CURE

THERE are many versions of the story relating to the origin of the milk cure. Perhaps the best known is that the noted Father Kneipp originated it at his Sanitarium in the Tyrol. There the dyspeptics and high livers of Europe went to be treated by the famous dietician and restored to condition, so that they might resume their course of high living for another period. High living is, of course, one of the principal causes of nutritional disorders.

In an old castle, surrounded by beautiful grounds with wide lawns, Father Kneipp administered the milk "cure". The "patient" was instructed to sleep in a cold room with windows wide open, a practice unknown in those days in Europe. Every morning the patient was routed out of bed early and sent to walk barefoot on the finely clipped green lawns. This was insisted upon, probably to compel them to take a certain amount of exercise. The idea of walking barefoot in the dew-wet grass was a novelty with a unique appeal to it.

Then for a period of time, carefully regulated to meet the condition of the "patient," he or she, was placed on a milk diet only. No food at all was taken during the period of the cure, and no other drink than milk allowed. Each patient was assigned a special cow from the dairy. The "patient" started by drinking a glass of milk at a time, as often as he desired. The size of the glass was increased as the cure progressed, (milk laxatives were administered, if necessary, to keep the bowels open), and the cure lasted for periods of seven days to two weeks. In that time the milk had thoroughly cleaned out the system, had re-established a large part the normal functioning of the organs, and when the "cure" was completed the patient went forth rejoicing and in far better condition of health. The daily repeated walks, the getting up early in the clean invigorating mountain air, and the exclusive milk diet had worked their wonders.

Milk diets are often recommended by doctors, but they should only be adopted on a physician's advice. The method is not unpleasant. The first day or two the lack of solid food causes discomfort and the craving for solids is rather hard to bear. But after the first two or three days the milk seems all sufficient and the "patient" actually enjoys going without food, drinking only milk.

BAKED POTATO AND MILK DIET

THIS is not an unpleasant diet, but it grows tiresome. Large, good quality potatoes are selected, scrubbed and baked until the starch has been thoroughly converted into dextrose. They are then opened and set back in the oven for a few minutes to allow moisture to further evaporate. Then they are seasoned with salt and perhaps a dash of pepper and eaten whole, skin and all. One large potato a meal is allowed, and the potato diet is for every meal during a short period, usually five to ten days. With the potatoes taken as a beverage. No butter, no cream, nor other condiments are allowed.

THE TOMATO AND EGG DIET

FOR two days each week the followers of this diet eat one raw tomato and one egg, boiled for 25 minutes until thoroughly hard. This diet is taken three times a day or two consecutive days of each week. Then repeated on following weeks. The rest of the time the patient eats and drinks whatever is desired. The theory of this diet is not quite so clear, but it is said to effect some remarkable results in weight reduction. In this case also a Doctor's advice should be asked.

THE SPINACH DIET

LIVING on spinach alone, eating nothing else, but drinking milk, or unsweetened tea, is reputed to be one of the quickest and most effective weight and general diets imaginable. The spinach is either eaten raw, as a salad, or plain boiled, with salt, but without butter, cream sauce or condiments.

Spinach is known to contain large proportions of minerals and to afford enough roughage, or cellulose, to prevent the patient from becoming seriously bowel-bound.

THE ITALIAN GRAPE CURE

IN certain parts of Italy grape vineyard Sanitariums have been established where sufferers from certain diseases, and obese people, are given a grape diet exclusively. This diet is said to regulate the body most surprisingly and is recommended by many physicians, especially in Europe, where they know most about the diet. The grapes grown in a certain section of Italy contain elements not always found in grapes and offer certain advantages not found elsewhere.

EPSOM SALTS BATHS

FOR a while there was a great vogue for the Epsom Salts bath method of weight reduction. This is not recommended, but is quoted here as a "fad" method of weight reducing.

Epsom Salts can be bought in large quantities very reasonably. The cost is only a few cents a pound. The method pursued is to place from one to three pounds of Epsom Salts in a very hot bath. The hotter the better. The bather gets in and stays in for fifteen minutes, adding hot water as the bath cools and as a higher temperature can be endured by the body. After fifteen minutes immersion, step out and, without drying, wrap a wool blanket around you and get into bed, piling up the warm bed clothes. Stay in bed for half an hour to an hour, as long as the profuse flow of perspiration continues, then a cool sponging off and a smart towelling with a harsh, rough towel, and the day's treatment is completed.

This treatment undoubtedly results in marked loss of weight, but it is weakening. The loss of weight is due to the heavy perspiration caused by the very hot bath, superinduced by the Epsom Salts in the water, and by the perspiring in the wool blanket and heavy bed clothes after the bath. People have been known to "sweat out" five or six pounds at a time this way, but the repeated use of these "sweats" is injurious to the health, and the reduction is so rapid and violent that the tissues sag and look aged. People with weak hearts and whose organs are not in the best condition should never consider this method.

Next week "Constipation" and "Auto-intoxication."

Mainly about WOMEN

South Sea Island Fashions

MANY a disillusioned man dreams sometimes of getting away from our complex civilization and living a simple life in the lap of nature. Gauguin's book "Noa Noa," and Flaherty's films created a heaven for these dreamers—the South Sea Islands. All pure and simple nature! But when one reads the accounts of travellers to-day the colour of the picture seems to change a bit.

When most of us think of South Sea fashions, it is usually in terms of the grass skirt. We somehow do not realise that the strongest influence over native dress is that of the missionary. Years ago he persuaded the island woman to discard her customary garb in favour of the Mother Hubbard—a sort of tent that covered her from chin to feet. Nevertheless, this sort of dress or some mild variation of it—something not quite so full with shorter sleeves and skirt done in a coloured ma-of the white man's highly-coloured costume jewellery. But many native ornaments are still worn, and this old craft may receive a new impetus with a change in native dress. They wear beautiful bracelets made from small coconut shells carved in intricate native designs, shark's teeth similarly carved to be worn around the neck. They made earrings and other ornaments from the mother-of-pearl shell, scented necklaces made from segments of pineapple, pandanus fruit, bits of sandalwood, and native berries.

Practically all the Polynesians painted their bodies years ago. In ancient Tahiti, the participants in certain native customs were painted half red and half black. But painting as an everyday measure is rather impractical: only on the isolated islands of Wallis and Futuna do the natives smear their bodies with coconut oil and powdered sandalwood, and rub saffron on their foreheads and cheeks.

A group of fashionably attired Chinese race-goers at last Saturday's meeting. They had evidently had a good race, for they found much to talk about. ("Herald" photo).

terial—is still the predominant dress in most of the islands.

But to-day native dress looks forward to a much brighter future. Within the last few years two new influences have crept in—modern missionaries and the "movies"—and they are already doing a lot to bring out some of the native beauty of the Polynesian race that has been hidden under the Mother Hubbard bushel for nearly a century.

Current notions about the benefits of sunshine and fewer clothing have been adopted by the more progressive religious factors, while they realize too that the white man's styles were developed in a temperate climate and the native islander, harassed by tropical downpours as well as sun, should have as few clothes as possible. So they are slowly advocating a return on the part of the native woman to her old native wrap-around skirt.

Perhaps the future dress of the islanders will be after the modern style on the little-visited Borabora Island. Their pareus—skirts that fall from the waist to just below the knees—are of a light yellow colour that harmonises well with the brown sheen of their bodies. The only other adornments are red hibiscus blooms worn in their shiny black hair just over one ear, and garlands of frangipanni and gardenias that hang low around their necks.

The use of native ornaments suffered with the introduction

There once was a time when the way a woman wore her hair was some key to her age—but that was before our grandmothers started bobbing their hair. In some of the islands, it is a different matter—the way a woman dresses her hair has a definite meaning. A young girl wears her hair cropped short, when she reaches marriageable age, she lets it grow and wears it about her shoulders. On marrying it is cut again, then combed upwards. The older women do a number of things to their hair—they bleach it with lime, colour it with some red dye, and scent it with sandalwood. The natives seem to think these measures enhance their beauty. A preferable hair-dress is that used in Tahiti, where women wash their long black hair daily and oil it with scented coconut oil and decorate it with the native gardenia, frangipanni, or hibiscus flower.

The movie influence is confined to the more or less civilised centres, but there Paris takes a back seat—Adrian furnished the inspiration. And there at a dance hall you might see native girls dressed in swank evening gowns sitting out because they have forgotten to wear their shoes! And when they put grass skirts over their frocks to do the native hula-hula—it's just an old tradition unearthed for the tourist.

The World's Greatest Love Story
Retold by Tangye Lean

Heloise And Abelard

EARLY in the morning the great bell of Notre Dame boomed out across the island in the Seine, calling the students of Paris to the feet of Master Peter Abelard, the golden tongue of medieval Christendom.

To the beadle strewing the floor of the lecture-hall with rushes from the banks of the river, it must have seemed that there was an overplus of learning in the world, for seven thousand students now waited on the stroke of that bell, and they included a Pope, nineteen Cardinals and fifty Bishops.

The Pope surrendered his dues willingly enough to the beadle, and so did the Cardinals, but the fifty Bishops and the six thousand nine hundred other students were not all so affluent.

They had come streaming in as the fame of Abelard spread across the world; from the North the Normans and the Bretons and the Anglo-Saxons and the Irish, from the East the Germans and the Poles, from the South Spaniards had crossed the Pyrenees and from Italy monks had left Rome and crossed the Alps to hear him.

He was thirty-nine, and now perhaps it seemed to him that the tower of Notre Dame was himself and its bell his voice resounding above the outworn tenets of a decaying faith. His triumph had never been difficult, for reason alone could do much to breathe life into the dry bones of scholasticism, and now that fame was his and wealth...

But was it, he wondered suddenly, just this? Fame he had possessed for long enough, and it had never shown him the almond blossom on the hill of St. Genevieve as he had seen it this morning quivering like a waterfall in the breeze. The streets seemed full of people he had never seen before; they had grown from the sun-soaked cobbles overnight. And somewhere in the centre of this vision was the face of a girl of eighteen, standing out clearly from the dim mist of his audience like a word from the pages of an open book.

She sat each day by the wall where the rushes were heaped, and she had no wax tablet like the others, no raised knee on which to write. She looked gravely at him with eyes that seemed to smile—yet there was no smile on her face.

"Find out her name," he had told his valet, and he had come back with the reply: "She is Heloise, the niece of Canon Fulbert, who possesses a whole bone from the spine of Saint Ebrulfus."

There was something different about his speech. The words came out like tangible patterns in the air, woven by his tongue into miracles of beauty.

Ovid slipped into his quotations and Virgil, and the figures of the heresy-hunters who must, he knew, be there among his audience, were only shadows against the sunlight. And sometimes, when he was tense with the beauty of his words, it seemed to him that his voice was a silver wire hung out across the hall and Heloise balanced there in the air before him.

The city streets after the lecture swarmed with his students. In the houses along his path the women came to the windows to watch him pass.

He walked by himself, and they knew in theory that this brain had denied the reality of universals, shaking the foundations of the Church, but they could see that it was lodged in the body of a god.

Soon rumour had it that you could hear his golden voice in the early mornings before the bell of Notre Dame echoed across the river. You could hear it, they said, falling softly like the petals of almond blossom from a side window in the house of Canon Fulbert, and it spoke no longer in syllogisms, but more richly than in the lecture hall, the words of love songs:

*Set now your arms on mine,
Take me our pleasure,
O flower of all the world—* and new poems composed, could one help wondering, by Master Abelard himself?

He had gone to lodge with Canon Fulbert on the understanding that he would be better able to teach his niece Latin and Hebrew and the knowledge of the Church.

That, he might justly claim, he had done, for if the words that came from him in the lecture-hall of Notre Dame were alive in a new sense, here in a silent room with Heloise his brain was so clear that it seemed to enclose them like a crystal as if Heloise by some miraculous transmutation had been made of the same stuff as his thoughts. A word, and she understood. With a sentence he seemed to lift her, light as a straw, to the highest branches of his mind.

But as the days passed, the threads of ethics and theology grew slender between them. They lay quietly on her bed watching the patch of sunlight from the window creep across the floor, and when they spoke it was to sing, but quietly, so that the aged Canon should not hear them through the cracked boards of the floor.

It's A Gay World Now!

VERY definitely designers of fashion, like all other creative minds, are tremendously sensitive to what is going on in the world, and their work reflects their mood. Take this feeling of optimism, of cheerfulness—it is going to do all sorts of exciting things to the fashions for Spring. There is no doubt about it, the mood of the world is gay. So clothes will be filled with youth, gaiety and colour.

The modern note, but never the grotesque. I hate the grotesque, or what I call the "monkey clothes." Believe me, it is not at all difficult to design the sort of clothes that are obviously the "searching-after-novelty" kind of things. I believe all good creations in fashion must be sane and have a raison d'être. Subtlety in line and design is what I aim at. A dress must never dominate a woman. It must aid her.

—Molyneux.

The Love Story Of Abelard And Heloise

could only answer the questions showered on him with a shake of his head. Master Abelard had private business. He lived now with Canon Fulbert, the fortunate possessor of a bone from the spine of St. Abulfus.

And the Canon, who had bathed in the reflection of Abelard's glory with so keen a pleasure, could no longer deafen himself to the songs that hovered faintly around his head, for their implication was being stated openly all over Paris, in the precincts of Notre Dame itself. He climbed the stairs to his niece's room, confronted Abelard, told him, deaf now to his fame and his anger, that he must go.

Heloise was with child. As soon as Abelard knew this he carried her off from the Canon's house at night and took her back to his home in Brittany.

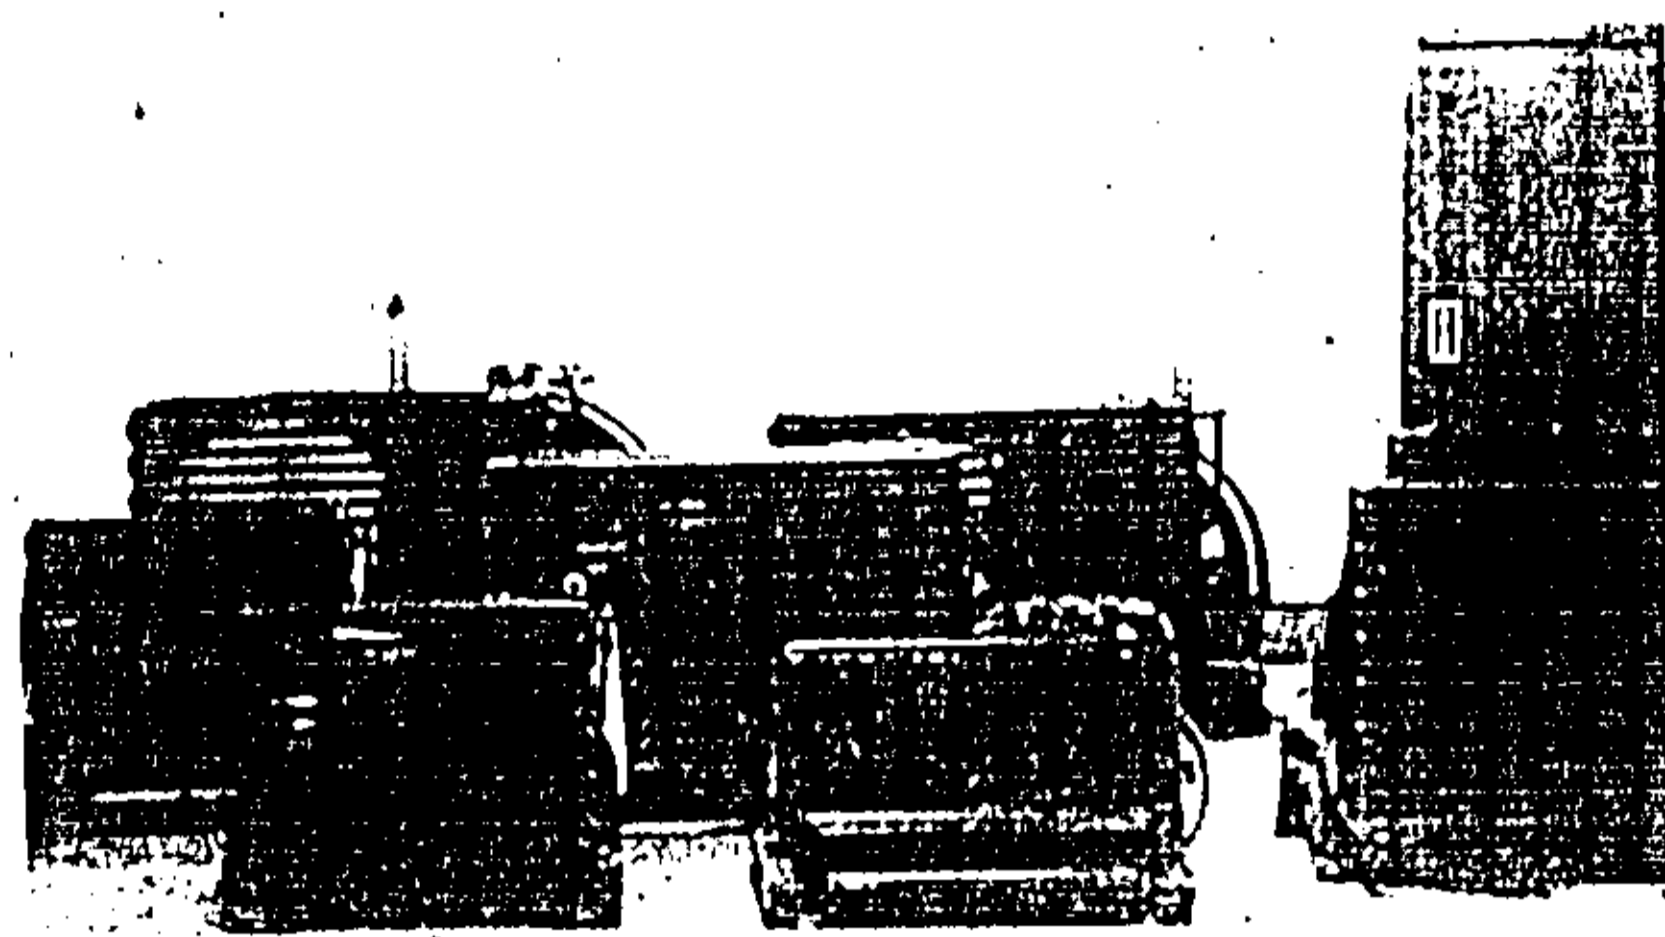

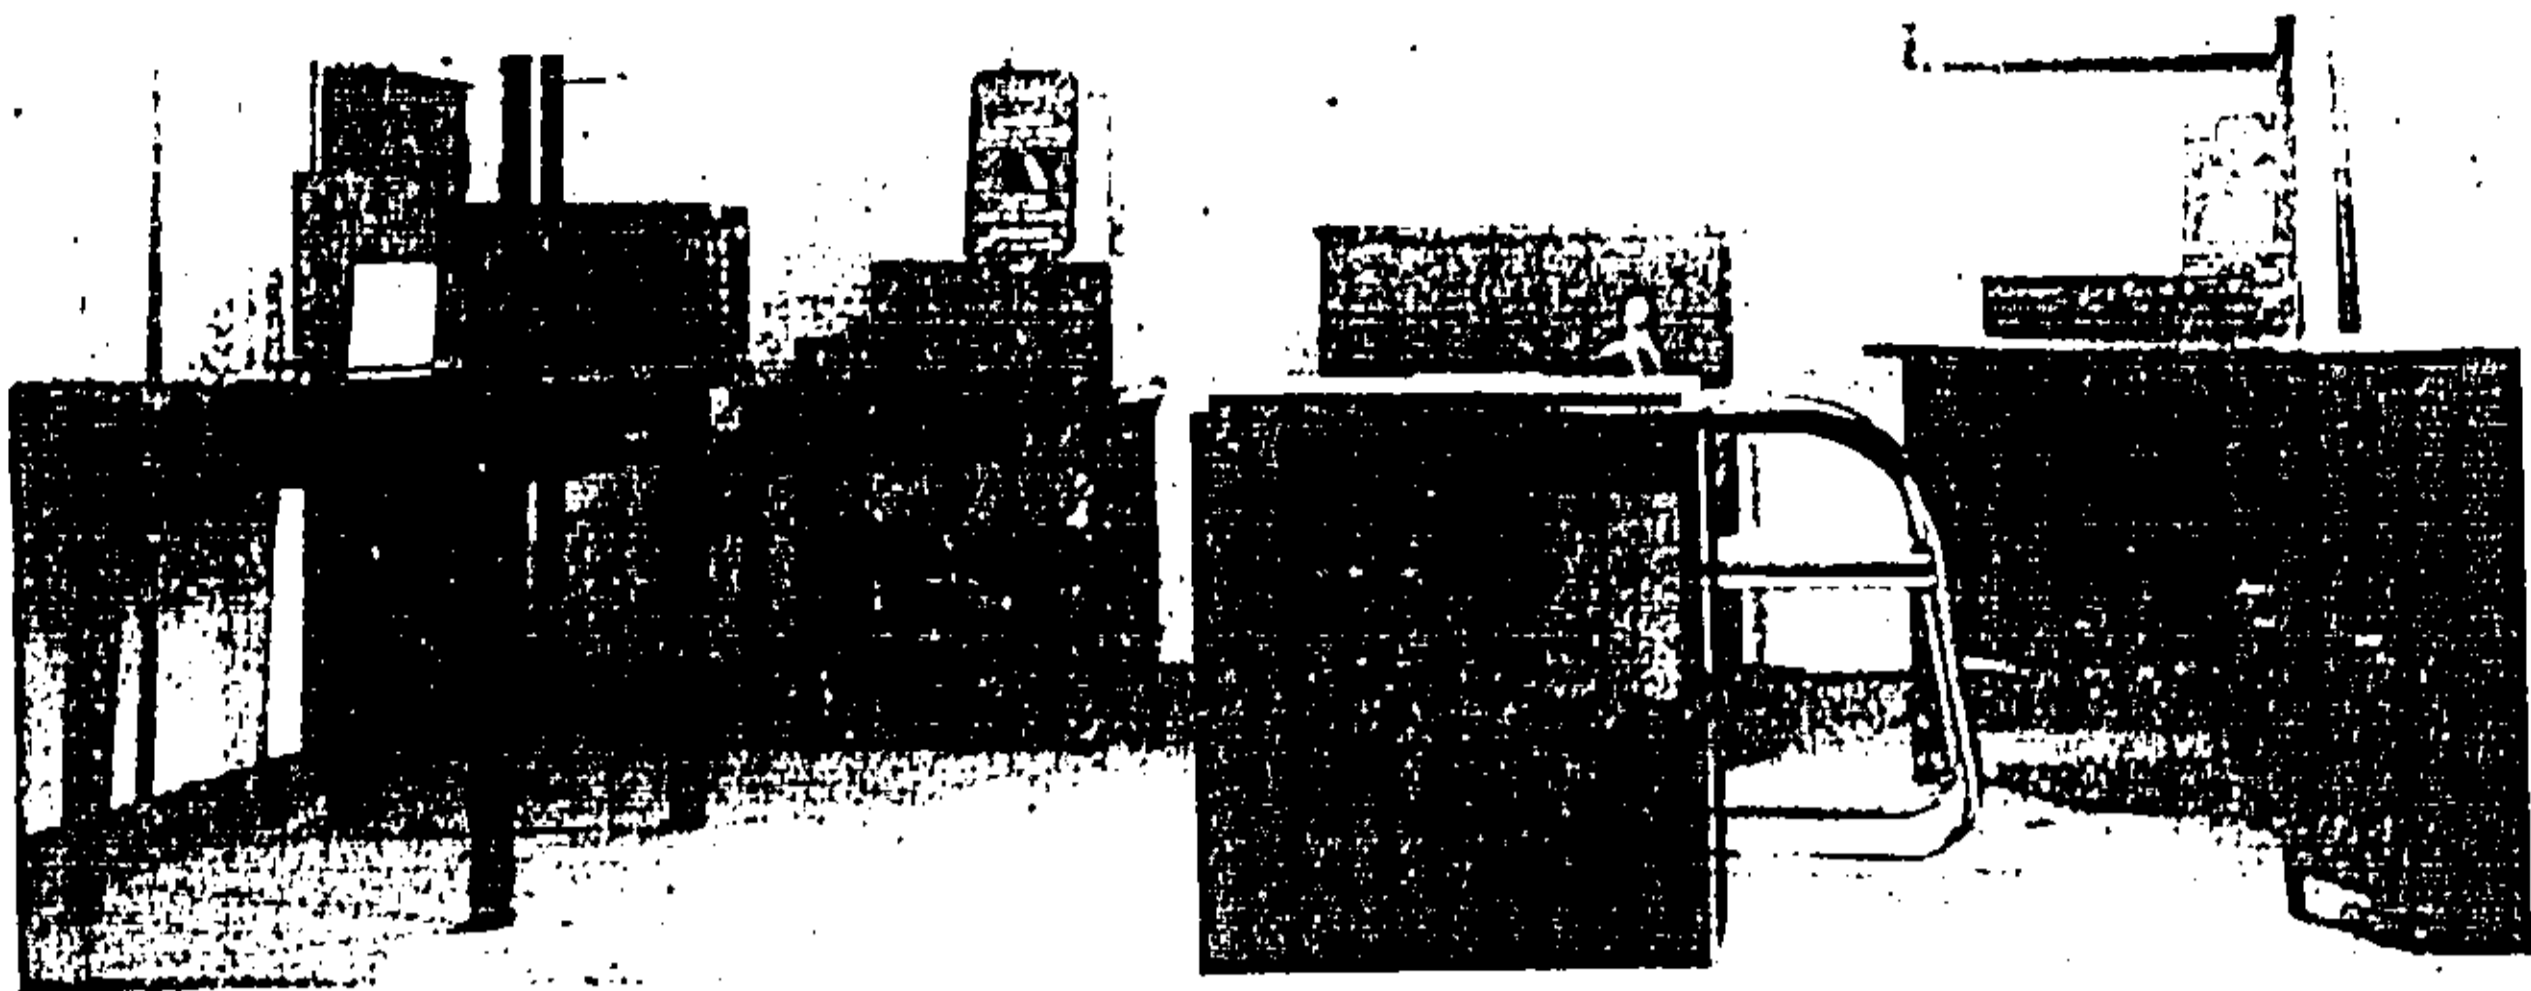

There among the shadows which were already beginning to fall on them they decided on a secret marriage.

In an obscure church back in Paris they spent the night with their knees on the hard stone flags of the floor by the altar. At dawn, after an early Mass, they were married.

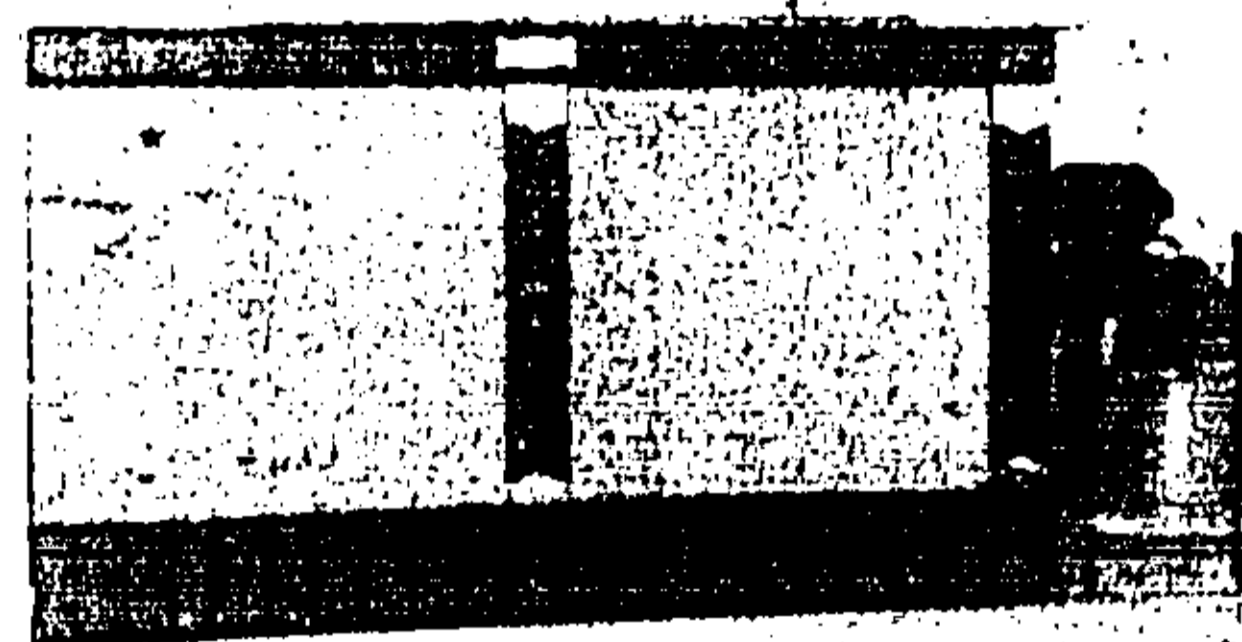

* * *

There followed months of quarrelling between Abelard and the garrulous old Canon, who wished now to make the marriage public. Heloise lived alone in the room where Abelard had loved her, and when eventually Abelard carried her off once more, the Canon, intoxicated with his own suspicions, believed that he was scheming for a dissolution of the marriage. He decided on revenge. Abelard, he cried, had done enough harm with his lusts. He would be better off without them.

And one day when the bell of Notre Dame had summoned the vast audience to the lecture-hall a rumour came running with them to the island that their Master Abelard had been terribly mutilated.

Only slowly did the full meaning of the news sink home, for the most theologically minded of that audience cared little for the man behind the message, considering it in a kind of spiritual vacuum. But others, more perceptive, seemed to see their master smiling as he swept them with the deep music of his words, and to them perhaps it was more difficult to think of the future.

But to Heloise it seems to have been impossible. She could not believe, they say, that Abelard would ever cease to love her, and when, virtually by force, they made her take the vows of a nun, she went stumbling up the steps to the altar weeping and sobbing as if she was on the verge of insanity.

Hong Kong Film Companies

ANY remarks one hears in Hong Kong on the subject of our local film industry are usually sarcasms about lack of funds and the short career of some of the companies. The fact is that no centre of filmland can afford to throw any stones at any other as regards finance. Only a few years ago Wardour Street was full of offices where contracts could be signed, but it was not at all so easy to get cheques. For the matter of that Hollywood itself after several years of prodigality was in the hands of bankers and mortgagees. In Shanghai one or two companies struggled along with the help of timely financial "refreshers." The cause was the same in every case—an underestimate of the capital required arising from the need to spend generously in the making of a picture and then to wait a long time before it can earn its cost, even with a successful run. In the meantime further funds are needed to make another, and they are not forthcoming. Hence arises a rather intricate net work of occasional combination with essential rivalry, in which the producer has to bargain with the studio where he is working and then with the theatres where he shows his picture. As in other industries it is the owner of "fixed capital" who comes out on top, because he is able to wait. There is no doubt that China provides an immense field, and that the supporters of Chinese films are a growing constituency.

About TOWN

The System In Outline

HERE in Hong Kong information is not easy to collect, and one can only give it subject to correction. I am told that there are no less than 46 companies, — if one uses that word in the theatrical and not the legal sense, — that is, organisations which are anxious to produce films. One must qualify the total with the further statement that some of them have not yet succeeded in their ambition, and that others having produced one are now awaiting a favourable financial breeze to carry them to their next port, or, to put it more plainly, to film their second picture. It also seems to be sadly true that some who have made a picture have not yet succeeded in placing it with any manager. There are four Studios in regular work, of which the best equipped seems to be the "Grand View," which has produced its full score of films. The "South Sea Film Co.," which started as the "Unique" but suffered the misfortune of a fire, has shown 10. Then there are the "South Canton" and the "Ming Yuen." The "Wai Wei Trading Company" is not only interested in Hong Kong films, but acts as agent for Shanghai studios, and sometimes imports American productions. The number of films produced here and in Shanghai has fallen from 15 or 20 per month to about 8, but as the number has declined the quality has improved, and a further concentration of capital on producing a few good films would probably help the profits. At present the average cost of making a film is $8,000, and it takes a year to get that investment back from the cinema-going public. The best comparison would be with Japanese conditions. Organisation has gone a good deal further there, without any attempt to rival Hollywood in spectacle. A studio in full work expects to turn out a complete film once a week, and to keep up that output steadily.

The Stars

IT would be too much to hope at this stage that the producers would have learned to aim at a well-balanced stock company rather than the star system, for they naturally imitate the only exemplars they have an opportunity of seeing. The leading male actor is Mr. Sit Kwok-sin, who is said to get a fee that would swallow up the capital of a small company. But speaking generally the most noticeable thing is that in China, as in Europe, the genius of acting is much more common in the actresses than in the men. How often has one wondered why a charming heroine should throw her passion at the feet of a dull young man who would obviously be incapable of returning it! We all remember the meteoric career of Miss Butterfly Wu, who now appears to have abandoned her does not allow to be corrected by re-acting the scene.

Miss Li

I WAS honoured the other day by an interview with Miss Li, who will be the heroine of a new picture to appear immediately after the Coronation festivities are over. She told me she had been the heroine of 13 films, of which her favourite was one called "Life." The new one is to be called "The Waitress", and is a rather sombre tragedy. She is supposed to be the wife of an educated young man returned from the States. Her husband's family regard the marriage as below his social standard. An illness makes it necessary to art. I am told however by connoisseurs that the best of all was Miss Un Ling-yik, who was at the top of her achievement when a set of scoundrels began to menace and blackmail her. The result was a strain stronger than her sensitive nerves could cope with, and a sad suicide. Here in Hong Kong, to judge by such pictures as I have seen, we have as much promising talent as any other centre, especially if we make allowance for occasional bad focussing, lack of synchronisation, and other technical weaknesses, which lack of funds appeal to them for help in getting medical attention, which is only granted on condition of a promise to leave him. On his recovery she goes away with her baby, which suffers from want of food and care and eventually dies when she is earning her living as a Radio Star. The heroine's misfortunes end in madness. One cannot deny to the Chinese film the credit of tackling genuine themes of social life, however sad, and the courage to give a story a sad ending when it is required by the plot.

GLORIOUS weather is here again and dashes to the beach are the order of the day. These two young ladies are only part of the reason why the art of beach-bathing is being taken up with new zest. Fresh air and swimming and cool drinks all contribute to a brimming existence of outdoor pleasure.

Sports Chatter

WONG Lu-man, well-known breast-stroke swimmer of the Mak Nga Bathing Association, is training hard for the forthcoming China National Games, to be held at Nanking on the Double Tenth. He may not take part in any swimming contest held in the Colony this summer.

New Swimmer

AMONG the many newcomers in Colony swimming circles is R. G. L. Oliphant, a recent arrival, who is with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation. He is reputed to be a fairly good sprinter and should make the Great Britain relay team for the Coronation Swimming Gala to be staged at the Victoria Recreation Club.

Giving Up Football?

A. V. GOSANO told me last Saturday at Club de Recreio that he and N. Beltrao are likely to give up soccer for good as both have lost interest in the game and are now concentrating on tennis. Bertie Gosano, however, will probably play another season.

Anderson Playing Tennis

D. J. N. ANDERSON, who proved so startlingly successful on the cricket field last season, will be seen in the role of a tennis player this Summer. He is likely to play for the "B" team of the Kowloon C.C.

K.C.C. "A" Tennis Team?

KOWLOON Cricket Club's "A" team for the coming tennis League is likely to be E. C. Fincher and E. F. Fincher, G. Bodiker and A. E. P. Guest, and S. A. Gray and A. Crawford.

More Tennis Competitions

A. V. GOSANO is to be congratulated on his suggestion at the annual lawn tennis meeting recently to hold more competitive tennis, including international competitions such as they have in Shanghai. There is no doubt that more competitions will improve the local standard.

C.R.C. Seek New Laurels

THE Chinese Recreation Club are preparing to carry off the Mixed Doubles Badminton League Championship next season. Several of their lady members are taking up this game seriously and can be seen practising almost every evening.

R. P. Phillips, who played for the K.C.C. bowls team last season, is now playing for the Civil Service First Division team, making his debut last Saturday against Club de Recreio.

By the Judge

I HEAR that the United Services Recreation Club are seriously contemplating running a Hard Courts Lawn Tennis Championship of the Colony towards the end of the season. This would indeed be an innovation and would probably be supported wholeheartedly in view of the novelty of the event.

Lady Golf Recruit

MRS. A. E. H. Castro is making great strides in golf, a sport in which she has taken a keen interest. Almost every week-end one can find her on the Kowloon course.

Mr. Pau's King's Justice (Mr. H. C. Pih) winning the High West Handicap from Rose-Queen (Mr. Proulx), nearest camera, and Dawn Star (Mr. Ip) at last Saturday's Race Meeting. ("Herald" photo).

Lay Due This Month

A. T. LAY, who was showing such promising form at lawn bowls prior to his departure for Home at the end of last season, should prove a decided asset to the Kowloon C.C., with whom he is likely to throw in his lot. He is due back in the Colony this month.

K.C.C. Bowls Competition

THE Kowloon Cricket Club will hold a lawn bowls pairs competition next Wednesday afternoon, commencing at 3 p.m., to commemorate the Coronation of His Majesty King George VI. Players will be drawn for and all beginners are welcomed. Every pair will play against every other pair.

K.C.C. Open Entrants

THE K.C.C. have already entered several names for the Colony Open Singles and Pairs Lawn Bowls Championships, the following names having been appended on their lists last Saturday. Singles: H. Nish, L. Jack, J. S. Dinnen, F. Goodwin, H. Overy, T. Ferguson, W. Mulcahy, A. E. Silstone, C. J. Tacchi and T. R. Hunter. Pairs: A. E. Silstone and F. Goodwin, W. Mulcahy and J. W. M. Brown.

Ernie Zimmermann As Skip

E. ZIMMERN, who last season skippered the Craigengower senior cricket team, is now to be seen in a new skippering role. The rink led by him was the only one to win against the Yacht Club in their opening League match in the Third Division.

Kowloon Tong's Bowls Promise

KOWLOON Tong, who made such a promising debut in the Third Division of the lawn bowls League, have among their ranks several players who last season represented the Kowloon C. C., among them being H. Gittins, S. J. Houghton and C. J. Roe.

First Title For Rodrigues?

A. M. RODRIGUES, the well-known University cricketer, is one of the most formidable entrants for the junior championship of Club de Recreio in their forthcoming annual tournaments. He has never won a tournament at that Club and for that reason is exempted from entering the senior event. It will be recalled that, in partnership with L. A. Silva, Rodrigues performed very creditably in the Colony Doubles Championship.

Soltau To Aid K.C.C.?

B. SOLTAU, who captained the Deutscher Klub (German Club) "C" Division Lawn Tennis League team two seasons ago, and who returned from leave some months ago, will probably be playing for the Kowloon Cricket Club this season.

Another Blazer For Dunkley?

AN interesting personality in the person of G. S. Dunkley, for many years Hong Kong's wicket-keeper in cricket Interports, passed through the Colony recently on his way to Shanghai, where he is being stationed. It will be interesting to see whether he will make the trip to the Colony next November as a representative of the Northern port.

Kilbee Returns

L. D. KILBEE, who a short while ago was transferred to Shanghai for an indefinite period, returned here last week. He told me that he will be staying here for some time, so, presumably, he will be a contender for Interport honours next November.

Rifleman L. Smith, of the Royal Ulster Rifles, and a member of their rifle team, will soon be joining the Dockyard Police.

I see that M. J. Medina and J. Cavanaugh, who won the Open Pairs Bowls Championship two seasons ago, have paired up again this season. Medina did not play much bowls last year.

K.D.R.C. Bowls Entrants

T. COLEMAN and G. Mitchell, of the Kowloon Docks Recreation Club, are both entering the Open Bowls Singles Championship, and will also partner each other in the Open pairs competition.

K.C.C. Bowls Newcomers

THE Kowloon Cricket Club Second Division Lawn Bowls League team fielded many newcomers against Craigen-gower last Saturday, among these being A. A. Dand, T. R. Hunter, the Police cricketer, F. E. Nash, who has taken part in Club tournaments, H. Kew, a keen badminton player, G. F. Rutter and J. R. Canning.

K.F.C. Bowls Coach

R. HALL, who is looking after the youngsters of the Kowloon Football Club bowling section is well pleased with the progress made. Hall is playing in the Third Division, after many years with the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, in order to give the beginners the benefit of his experience.

One of the most promising of the new recruits to bowls is V. White, the Kowloon Football Club player. He has taken to the game very quickly and should soon develop into a good player.

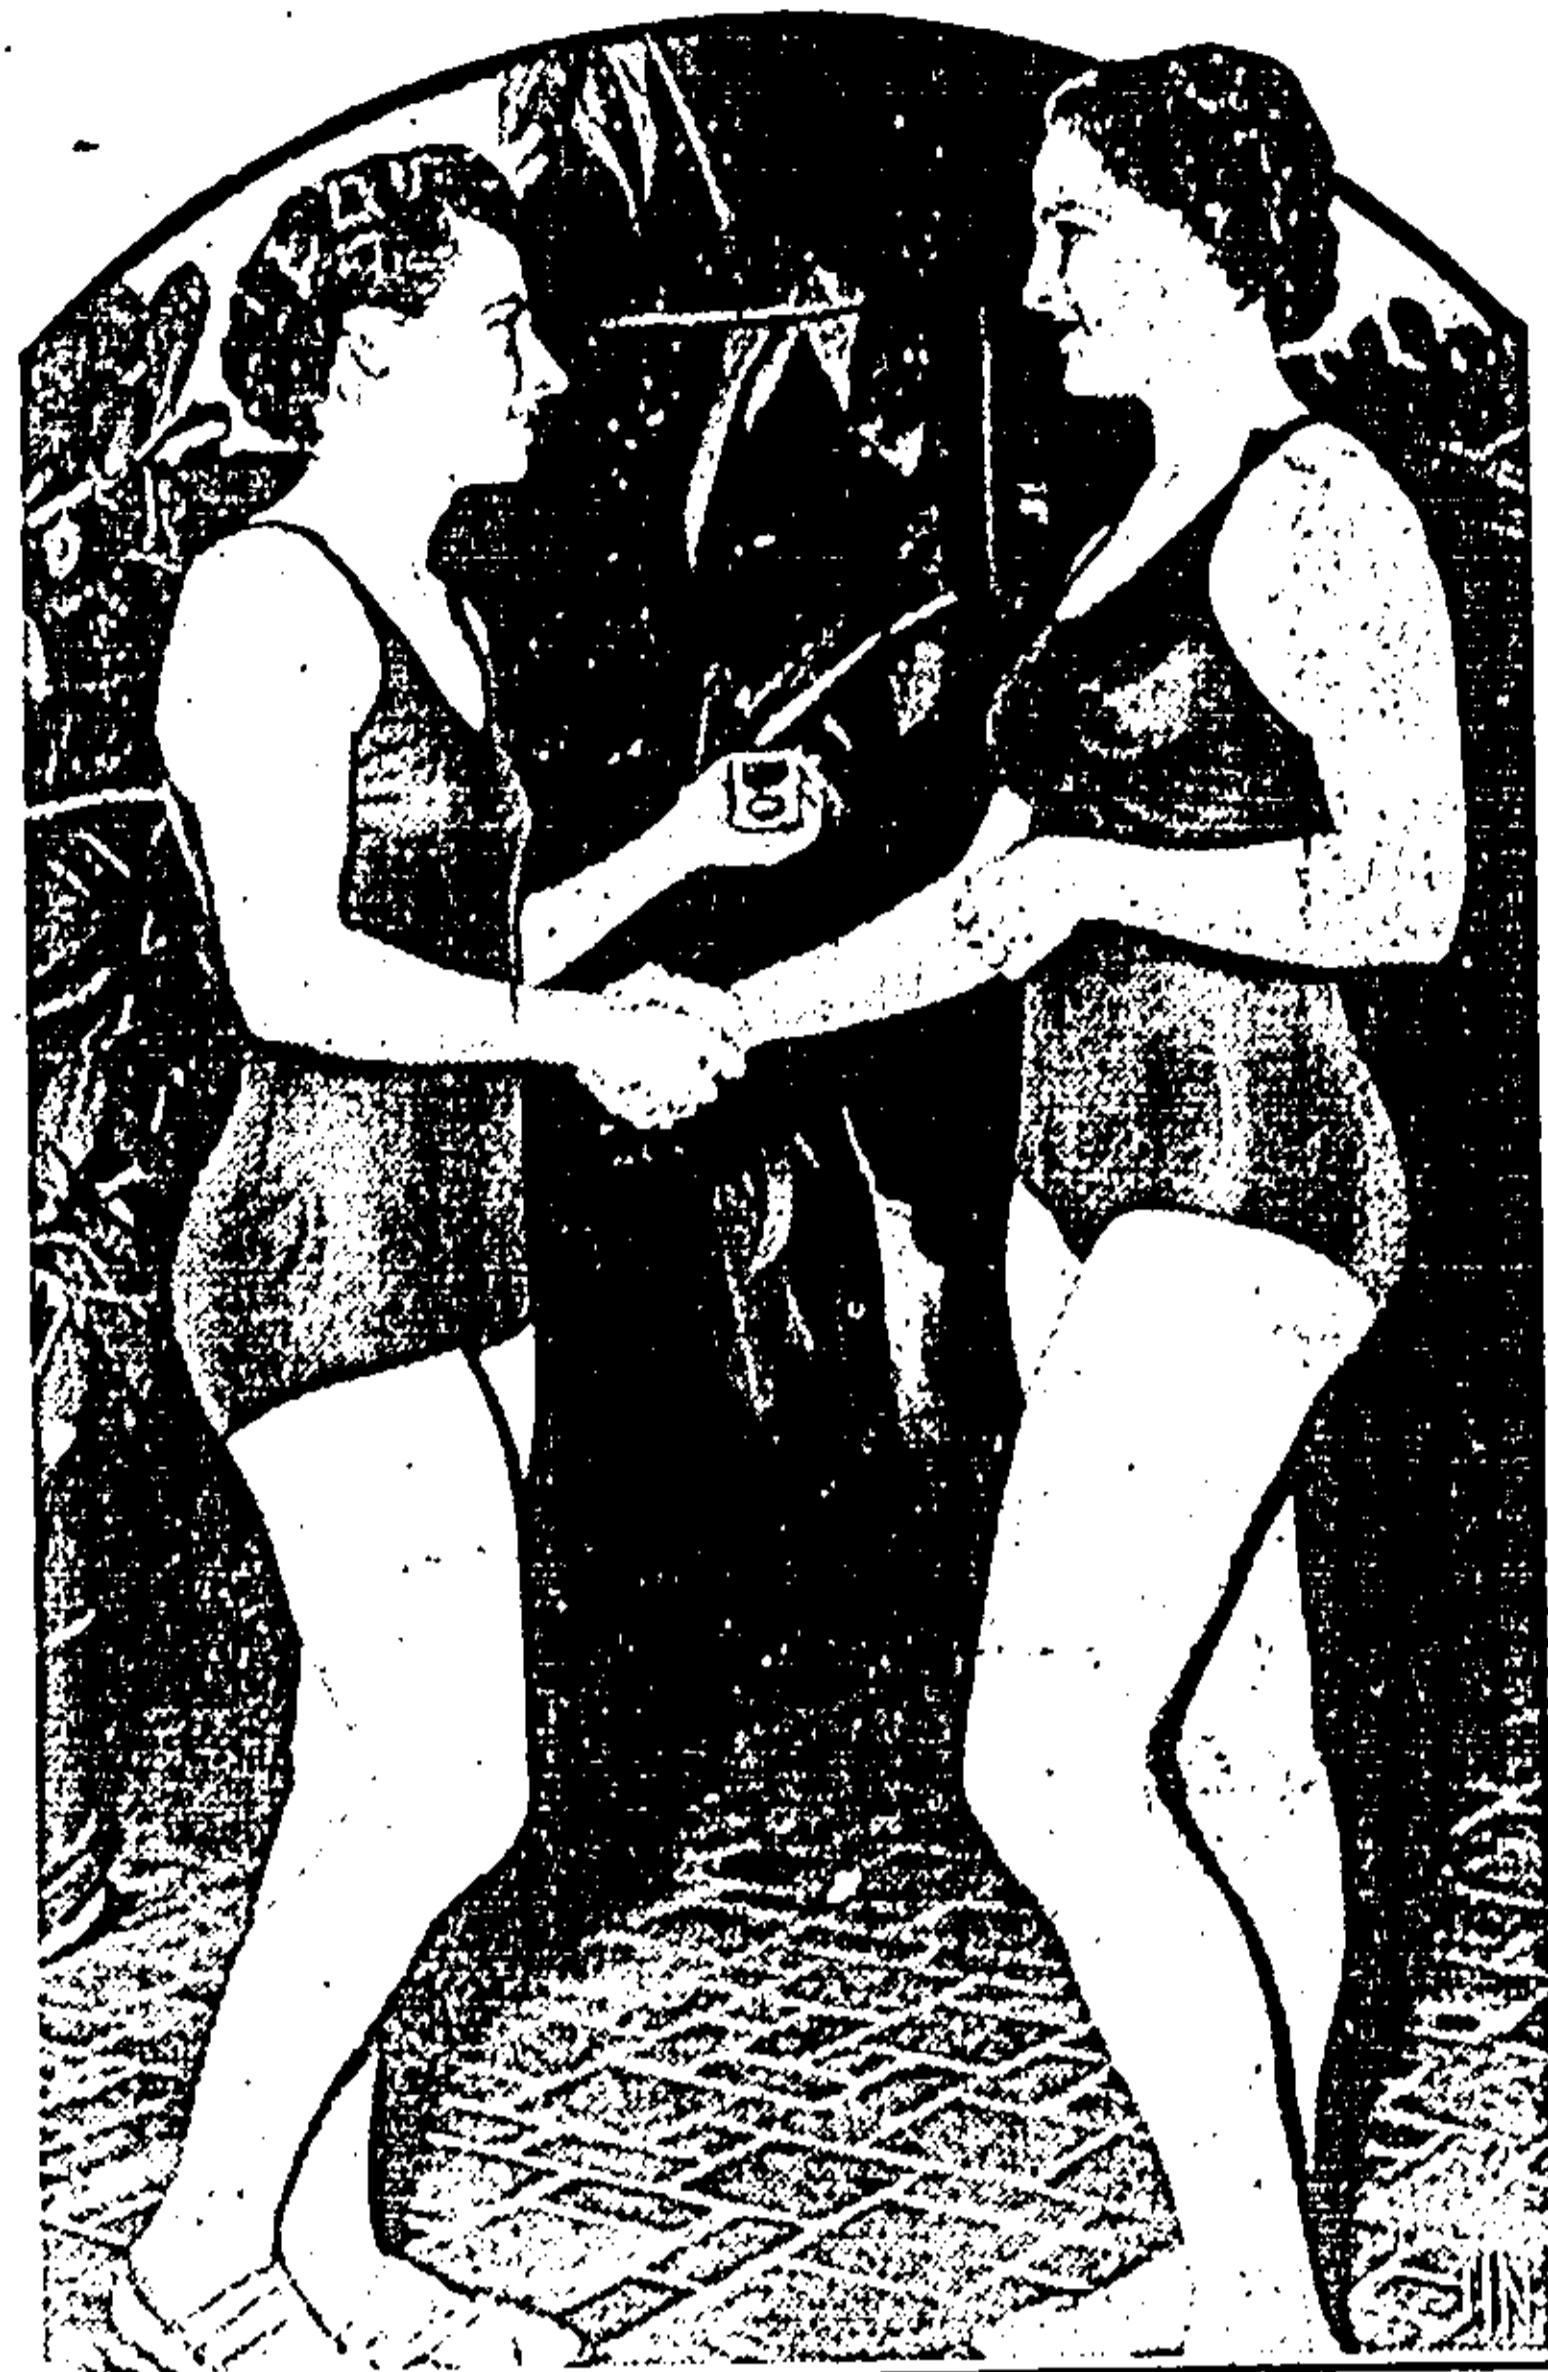

Filipino Baseball Hopes

M. J. RULL, who has been appointed manager of the Filipino baseball team and who formerly played for the Club, tells me that he has a good team this season though they will take some time to get into shape.

Chun To Play Again

"KANKY" K. Y. Chun, the catcher for the Overseas Chinese baseball team, played for Salt Lake City in 1923. Chun will play a few games till the team get into shape and may then take up umpiring.

Ching Not Pitching This Year
"WALLY" Ching, the Overseas' short-stop, who is reckoned by many to have the best throwing arm in China, will not be pitching this season. His understanding with B. S. Ching at second base has greatly strengthened the Chinese infield.

Miss Ann Borg left, winner of four firsts in the A. A. U. swimming championships at Washington, D. C., is here seen being congratulated by Miss Elizabeth Wright, who won a second and a third. In this case beauty seems to go hand-in-hand with speed.

Bowlers Promoted

THE Civil Service Senior Division bowls team have several newcomers, including J. Pengelly and Cooke, who played for the juniors last season, while Recreio have also promoted several juniors, among these being F. X. Soares and L. J. Silva, who were both junior skips. C. F. Remedios, the ex-Shanghai champion and Inter-port soccer captain, made his first appearance against A. W. Grimmer's rink, and can be said to have provided the turning point in their encounter when the Civil Servants were leading 18-16, the Portuguese scoring a six on the 20th end.

Kowloon Dock Quartette

F. CULLEN will skip one of the Kowloon Docks' rinks in the Colony lawn bowls rink competition. His rink will comprise A. Coleman (No. 1), A. Morrison (No. 2), and J. Fraser (No. 3).

W. J. Gault, a member of the K.C.C. First Division bowls team, will not be playing this season as he leaves for England on furlough next Wednesday, Coronation Day.

Pau Takes Up Bowls

JOHN PAU, the King's College badminton player, has taken seriously to lawn bowls; he played for Craigen-gower's third team in their opening League match against the Yacht Club.

MILK PASTEURISATION CONTROVERSY

Important Debate Anticipated At Urban Council Meeting

Dr. Li Shu-fan And Dairy Farm's Position

An important debate on the pasteurisation of the Colony's milk supplies is anticipated at Tuesday's meeting of the Urban Council when a resolution will be submitted by the Chairman, calling for compulsory pasteurisation as from July 1, 1938.

THAT THERE IS OPPOSITION TO THE RESOLUTION IS SUGGESTED BY QUESTIONS PUT DOWN ON THE ORDER PAPER BY DR. LI SHU-FAN, WHO IMPLIES THAT THE DECREE MAY PUT SMALL DAIRIES OUT OF BUSINESS.

The proposed amendment of the Dairy by-laws under the Public Health (Food) Ordinance, as is to be submitted by the Government, states:

1A. On and after 1st July, 1938, no person shall sell or expose for sale and no dairyman shall purvey any milk other than pasteurised milk.

For the purposes of this by-law "pasteurised milk" means milk which has been heated to, and retained for a period of not less than thirty minutes at a temperature of not less than 145 degrees on the Fahrenheit scale or 63 degrees on the Centigrade scale and not more than 160 degrees on the Fahrenheit scale or 63.5 degrees on the Centigrade scale, and which has been immediately been cooled to a temperature of not more than 55 degrees on the Fahrenheit scale or 12.78 degrees on the Centigrade scale.

DR. LI SHU-FAN AND THE DAIRY FARM
Dr. Li Shu-fan's questions will precede the moving of the official resolution. He will ask:

"In view of the forthcoming motion by the Chairman for compulsory pasteurisation of milk, will the Chairman kindly reply:—

(I) Whether the proposed enforcement will adversely affect the smaller dairies, and result in the permanent closure of these dairies?
(II) If the answer is in the affirmative:

Whether the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Co., which possesses a pasteurisation plant and which is the main source of milk supply in the Colony, will be able to maintain an adequate supply, irrespective of dry season or drought?

ADEQUATE SUPPLIES

(III) Is it a fact, that in the past, the milk supply of the Dairy Farm, Ice and Cold Storage Co., was quite inadequate, especially during the Summer months?

(IV) What steps does the Government propose to take, with a view to ensure an adequate supply after the enforcement of compulsory pasteurisation?

CHARCOAL MURDER PETITION

APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY

The "Sunday Herald" learns that a petition to His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government is in the course of preparation, seeking the reprieve of Chiu Yuk-fai now at Victoria Gaol under sentence of death for the crime of murder in connection with the sensational "Charcoal Murder."

It is understood that several well-known Europeans and Chinese are sponsoring the petition and that it will be ready for public signatures before the Coronation festival.

The principal ground for reprieve likely to be submitted to His Excellency will arise from the unusual circumstances of the crime, the petitioners urging that the condemned man's mind at the critical moment was entirely free of any intention to use violence or force and that his degree of culpability was far removed from that usually associated with murderous intent.

Change In Time Of Service

The special Coronation Service in St. John's Cathedral on Wednesday, May 12, will start at 11.15 a.m. and not at 11 a.m. as previously announced.

It is notified that during the absence on leave of Mr. Kosaku Midzusawa, Consul-General for Japan at Hong Kong, Mr. Hisakichi Okamoto will be in charge of the Japanese Consulate-General.

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has appointed Dr. Bau Tzu-yung to be a Member of the Midwives Board for a term of three years, vice Dr. Phoon Sock-weng, resigned, with effect from May 1.

Bernhard's New Coat Of Arms

The Hague, Yesterday.
A new coat of arms, designed by the Netherlands Heraldic Office, has been conferred by Queen Wilhelmina on her son-in-law, Prince Bernhard.

The design shows the Dutch lion and the coat of the German House of Lippe, whose name Prince Bernhard bore prior to his marriage to Princess Juliana.—Trans-Ocean.

RUSSIAN WITHOUT A PASSPORT

Member Of Band Of Gypsies

Tagor Petrovitch, an unemployed Russian, who was charged before Mr. K. Keen last Saturday with entering the Colony on April 30 without a valid passport, again made his appearance at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning.

On the last occasion defendant said he had been to the Acting British Council at Macao and was told that a visa was not required for him to come to Hong Kong. He was remanded then for the Police to make enquiries but yesterday morning Detective Sergeant Russell said that a letter had been received from the British Consul there who denied defendant's statement.

The defendant then said that he was probably under a misunderstanding.

In asking His Worship to take a serious view of the case Sergeant Russell said that defendant was well-known to the Police in Hong Kong, Singapore and throughout China. He was a member of a band of gypsies who roamed through the country indulging in thieving and swindling. In 1926 he was suspected of being concerned in a larceny by trick at Tsun Wan and was warned to leave the Colony, while he had had trouble with the Singapore Police for similar offences.

Defendant was fined $100 in default two months' hard labour.

PASSPORT VISAS

Change In Rule For Japan

It is notified for general information that passport endorsements to the effect that the bearer is a resident of Hong Kong will in future be accepted by the Japanese Authorities in lieu of a Japanese Consular visa only if made or renewed not more than twelve months before entry into Japan.

Endorsements will be renewed free of charge on application to the Passports Office.

The charge for a first endorsement is four dollars, except in connection with the issue and renewal of passports when an inclusive fee is charged.

DAILY EXPRESS SENSATION

SHARP BERLIN DENIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.
Sensational reports appearing in the London "Daily Express," predicting serious developments in Czechoslovakia within a few days, and an important radio statement by Herr Hitler on the situation, indicating Germany's policy, were categorically denied here to-day.

The "Daily Express" has stated several times that German diplomatic quarters were fearing an outbreak in Czechoslovakia following the recent German diplomatic parleys with Italy, Hungary and Yugoslavia.

"Germany," says an official announcement, "feels no anxiety over the situation in Czechoslovakia, and does not expect any trouble in that country."—Trans-Ocean.

H.M.S. Shropshire Home Again

London, Yesterday.
H.M.S. Shropshire, of the First Cruiser Squadron in the Mediterranean, which has recently been stationed off the north coast of Spain, arrived at Spithead to-day after two and half years' service abroad.—British Wireless.

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has appointed Dr. Hermann Bauman, F.R.C.S., to be a Member of the Dental Board, during the absence from the Colony of Dr. George Duncan Ralph Black, O.B.E., V.D., with effect from April 30.

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government has appointed Mr. John Lewis Tetley to be an Assistant Superintendent of Imports and Exports, and Assistant Monopoly Analyst, with effect from May 1.

BRIDGE NOTES

An Elementary Safety Play

THAT'S the tenth time to-night a suit has failed to break for me!" South growled. "O, well, you can afford bad breaks with the cards you hold," West said comfortingly. "Why, you lucky stiff, you even show a profit on this hand, with your 150 aces."

West was wrong in only one respect. South had, it is true, netted 50 points on the hand just dealt, since the one trick penalty at three no trump vulnerable had been offset by 150 aces, but the observation that South "with his cards could afford it" was more sarcastic than accurate. No one can afford to throw away big cards. There always is a rainy day in bridge, and unless previous good luck has been capitalised the ledger is apt to show a great deal of red ink.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 no trump Pass 2 no trump Pass
3 no trump Pass Pass
West opened the spade queen, and declarer won. Only eight top tricks were in sight, but the heart suit offered a splendid chance for building the ninth. At the second trick, therefore, declarer led a heart, but unfortunately he led the wrong heart! The heart lay-out with which he had to work should have dictated the proper sequence of heart leads. He could see that if the suit broke 3-2, virtually any method of play would return three heart tricks, but that if one defender had four, it mattered a great deal as to how the play was handled. If East had four, nothing could be done about it, since his minimum of two honours and ranking spot cards would lie over dummy's nine. No insurance could be taken against this, but there was a simple way to guard against a similar holding in the West hand.

Declarer's first heart lead should have been the ace—not a low card. When the ten dropped from East's hand, it would have been an elementary safety play then to have led toward dummy's king-9-4, and, if West played low, put up the nine spot. If East won this, it would merely prove that the suit was going to break. As it happens, the nine would have held the trick.

Obviously, if West should split his honours at the second heart lead (which would be bad, and tantamount to showing his cards to the declarer), dummy's king would win, and later a third lead be made toward the guarded nine spot. It would be difficult to devise a more elementary safety play than this.

Answer: Correct bidding is as follows:
Opener Responder
1 spade 2 hearts
2 no trump 3 no trump
The opener's two no trump rebid is slightly shaded, but he must rebid, and has no better choice. Responder's three no trump is based on much the same reasoning.

There are 142 cows in the herd. When the kind neighbour lent his two cows the division was very simple thus:

John got 48
Tom got 36
Henry got 24
Bill got 18
George got 16

LON sat on the porch step scraping his pipe and watched the woman up on the hill approach the house. She stood out like an enormous silhouette, tall and broad. Her walk was a side-sway. She bore down upon distance swinging one arm back and forth like a paddle.

All she asked for was a drink of water.

"That's cheap enough. Just help yourself. There's the pump and there's the dipper. You'll have to prime it a little first."

The woman drank like a man. Her head thrown back, the mouth open wide, she emptied the dipper in one swallow. The water spilled down the sides of her mouth on to her shirt, but she didn't mind it. Nor was she satisfied with one drink. She planted herself beside the pump and filled up the way a horse or a cow would fill up, until every line and feature of throat was removed from her body.

"That sure tasted good," she said. "That sure is good water."

Lon asked her to sit down and rest a bit. He noticed she was wearing a pair of men's work shoes and he thought how fine it would be to have a woman like that out in the field with him, pitching along the hay or loading, being alongside of him down the potato rows, getting up at five in the morning with him to help milk the cows and in the evening sitting with him out on the porch steps, her strong heavy legs stretched out as they were now, her body slumped down tired and positive.

Everybody called her Phil, she said, but her name was really Philomena. She was from Massachusetts—Brocton. Hadn't been back there for over six years. Left when her husband was killed by a cornice which had got loose from a building. Since then she'd been leaving one town and going to another; cook in lunch rooms, housekeeper, cranberry picker, tended looms in textile mills. She was headed now for Mystic where a second cousin of hers ran a bakery. "There's something nice about a bakery. It's all clean and white. There's always a clean fresh smell in a bakery."

In this house, thought Lon, there is always a sharp smell of lysol. Even he with all the opposing smells he brought in—cow manure, milk dried hard, layer upon layer, on pant legs, wet earth—capitulated before this. It was Hattie's smell. It belonged to her as much as the farm did. It came wrapped up in her tradition, in her chronic illness; her thin body was draped in it.

"There's a clean fresh smell on a farm too," said Lon in defence. "I guess you've worked on a farm and you ought to know it. How about the smell o' cut grass? And a clean flank of a clean cow ain't so bad neither. And how about some nice black wet garden dirt steamin' in the sun after a rain, eh? A bakery's all right, but I guess it gets sort of hot there in the summer time, don't it?"

She appreciated this description, he noticed. There weren't many people you could talk to like this and get a response from, least of all a hired man.

Philomena stayed. She was general house-and-farm-hand all in one. Up in the north-east corner, facing the apple orchard, was her room.

These summer days there wasn't much to do inside. Meals came more or less ready-made—smoked shoulder, sausages, vegetables and greens, cereals—prepared in a few minutes; hardly any cleaning. But she preferred doing any number of chores outdoors rather than get the coffee and grits ready under the supervision of Hattie's wheezing and racking cough.

Her presence brought a new order of things to the farm. It was a pleasure to see that untiring, solid, onward movement of her body as she worked. Lon was freshened by it. All that blue New England blood of his, thinned out by generations of in-breeding, by an aimless flowing on, started to thicken. All these years he'd been like a Southern hillbilly. Even the eyes were numb to the disintegration.

Nobody spurred him on. Hattie was a drab, ailing woman. At 38 she looked like 50. Her brand of criticism had become too monotonous to have any meaning for him.

SHORT STORY

The Tower Of Weakness

(By MURRAY GITLIN)

Hattie saw the two of them close together. She heard the new woman laugh; saw them looking at each other; saw Lon strutting about with his thumb stuck under his belt. She carried jealousy with her day and night; stood at the window upstairs to see what the two of them were doing together on the lot; awoke at night and threw an arm across the bed—deliberately—to make sure . . . saw to it that Lon did not stray too far from the house when the new woman went off for her evening bath in the river.

For Lon the nights were also restless. Often he woke up and imagined he heard a noise off in the northeast corner; feet going down the stairs. He listened. Seemed like a door was opened and shut to; that these same feet were now hurrying along the road down to Mystic where there was a bakery that smelled clean and fresh.

Lon pleaded with Phil not to listen to his wife: "Seems like nowadays whenever a man and woman's together there's always somebody's tongue waggin' like a cow's tail. Only a cow's tail does some good. It chases flies. Damn it, Phil! If you get mad or somethin' because of Hattie I'll put a whip to you, honest I will."

But seldom did she have anything to say. What she could be thinking about he never knew, nor did he try to find out. He wanted her to tell him that she was satisfied here, but beyond that he was afraid to go prying, not because of what he might discover there in her mind, but simply because you never could be sure with a woman—sometimes for no reason at all they got peeved and angry, sometimes they imagined that a man got close to a woman and asked questions of her only because she was a woman, not because he might be interested in her as a friend.

On the field there wasn't much talk between them. They'd laugh when Lon, sticking a pitchfork square through the middle of a haycock, found he couldn't lift it; when a jolt of the wagon sent her sprawling. Once she got off the hayload on the opposite side "to fix something." It had got wound around her knees, this something. Lon wanted to put it in his pocket for safe keeping. There was the colour of a blush showing through her dark browned skin. Lon laughed. She laughed too. They couldn't stop laughing.

Hattie heard their guffawing then; it carried right across the muggy, sodden air to the window upstairs. She put a shawl across her shoulders and walked to the meadow. But they were already coming back.

They drove on. Philomena's face did not change its expression. There wasn't a hint of embarrassment on it. She just sat there at the front end of the wagon, atop the hay, as stationary as a house you expect to find when you turn the bend. Yet he knew she must be thinking. This was the time to talk to her, but he was afraid. The vision of a conversation with her now terrified him. Suddenly she might turn toward him, this oak might suddenly start to sway and shake with anger, in one leap she'd be off the wagon, and he, running after her down the road, would have dust to eat.

The next day when they were stooping over weeding in the garden he noticed she tried to be behind him always. She had let the hem out of her dress so that it came down almost to the ankles. In the morning when he went to the creamery with the milk he bought her a pair of overalls, thinking to himself: "Now maybe both of 'em'll feel a little more easy." But it worked just the other way round. The overalls made Philomena more conscious of her size (they were a little small) and of her sex.

"You mustn't pay no attention to her," he said. "Jest forget about her. You see, she's thinkin' to herself that—well, where there's a man and woman alone there's got to somethin' happen, she figures. Damn it! I swear to you I ain't never thought o' you in that way. We're jest two good old pals, that's all, ain't we Phil?"

Philomena went along, chopping at the weeds.

"Me and Hattie don't get along good. Of course we don't. An aillin' woman ain't nothin' to brag about. But once in a while she kind o' perks up, kind o' forgets she's got nothin' the matter with her, and it ain't so bad then. It ain't all dogfistin' between us. She and me's got nothin' against each other."

Her hoe did not stop its rhythm for one moment. Lon felt that he hadn't explained himself properly to her.

Lagging along behind he noticed her broad back, the overalls a little too short for her, her bare feet, her body filling up the entire space between the two rows of late sweet corn. The string remained just as taut. Not once did she turn her head to look at him. He couldn't catch one glimpse of her eyes to guess how she felt about it. Suddenly he began to strike at the weeds with short swift strokes, each propelled by a rising torrent of anger. The hoe handle bent under it. The weeds fell like match-sticks.

"Once and for all I'm goin' to put an end to this business!" he muttered. "I've had my bellyful of it! I'm goin' to settle it once and for all!"

He threw down the hoe and without a word to Philomena started across the lot toward the house.

Hattie was on the second floor. He could hear her move about, descend the stairs. In one hand she was holding a bottle of medicine, in the other a spoon.

He hadn't seemed to realize how frail a woman she was. Her eyes were blurred-looking. On her neck the sinews stood out sharp. The hands, the elbows, the arms, they were so thin and fragile. He had come prepared to hurl curses at her; now he stood there unable to speak.

There were two women before him, not one. As though he, the intermediary, were holding the two apart—the weaker from the stronger. He did not know where he himself stood, on which side, just what his function here was.

He retreated to the door. A strange feeling came over him. It wasn't fear—it wasn't strength—it wasn't weakness—but pity. It was impossible to shout at a woman who stands before you, bent and warped, sick and pale, her eyes riveted on you with a bewildered, wrung-out look.

"Is somethin' the matter, Lon?"

"I was jest wonderin'," he said, "jest thinkin' things over. Came for a jug o' cold water. That's what."

He forgot about the water. He left the house and retraced his steps to the cornfield, feeling only contempt for himself. This great strength which he supposed he had acquired had about as much power in it as a calf's bleat. He was going to settle everything—and went to pieces the moment he was face to face with a sick woman.

Phil was still chopping weeds when he got back. She heard his shoes striking the stones as he walked toward her and she hiked down her overalls. Lon caught her by the arm from behind.

"You ain't aimin' to leave, are you? Why are you so quiet-like, Phil?"

She twisted her body out of his grasp, but slowly, as if it were merely an automatic movement of self-consciousness. Her hoe went on striking at the root of the grass. She gave him a quick glance. Lon winced under it. Surely she knew what he had gone to the house for, and she could tell that he had come back without accomplishing anything. She too must have contempt for him.

"Hayin's about done," she said.

He didn't understand.

"Things'll be easin' up now, Phil. It's the hardest job over with."

"My cousin in Mystic must be wonderin' where I've been hidin' out all these months."

"You mean—you mean you're aimin' to leave?" he asked.

"I got to."

He leaned on the hoe and it shook. "You got to," he repeated. "Seems like—well . . ." The hoe sunk deeper into the earth. "What do you mean you got to? Who's drivin' you out? It's Hattie, ain't it?"

She shook her head.

"Me?"

Philomena denied that.

"It's me," Lon went on, his voice rising. "I know it. You got no use for me any more. You seen me run off to the house and come back again with nothin' settled. Left all het up and come back like a lamb."

"I jest can't stay in one place too long."

"You ain't tellin' the truth, Phil. It's me and nobody else. You're more man than I am, and you got nothin' but disgust for a person who ain't got the guts to talk up and do things. Ain't that right? Ain't that the truth?"

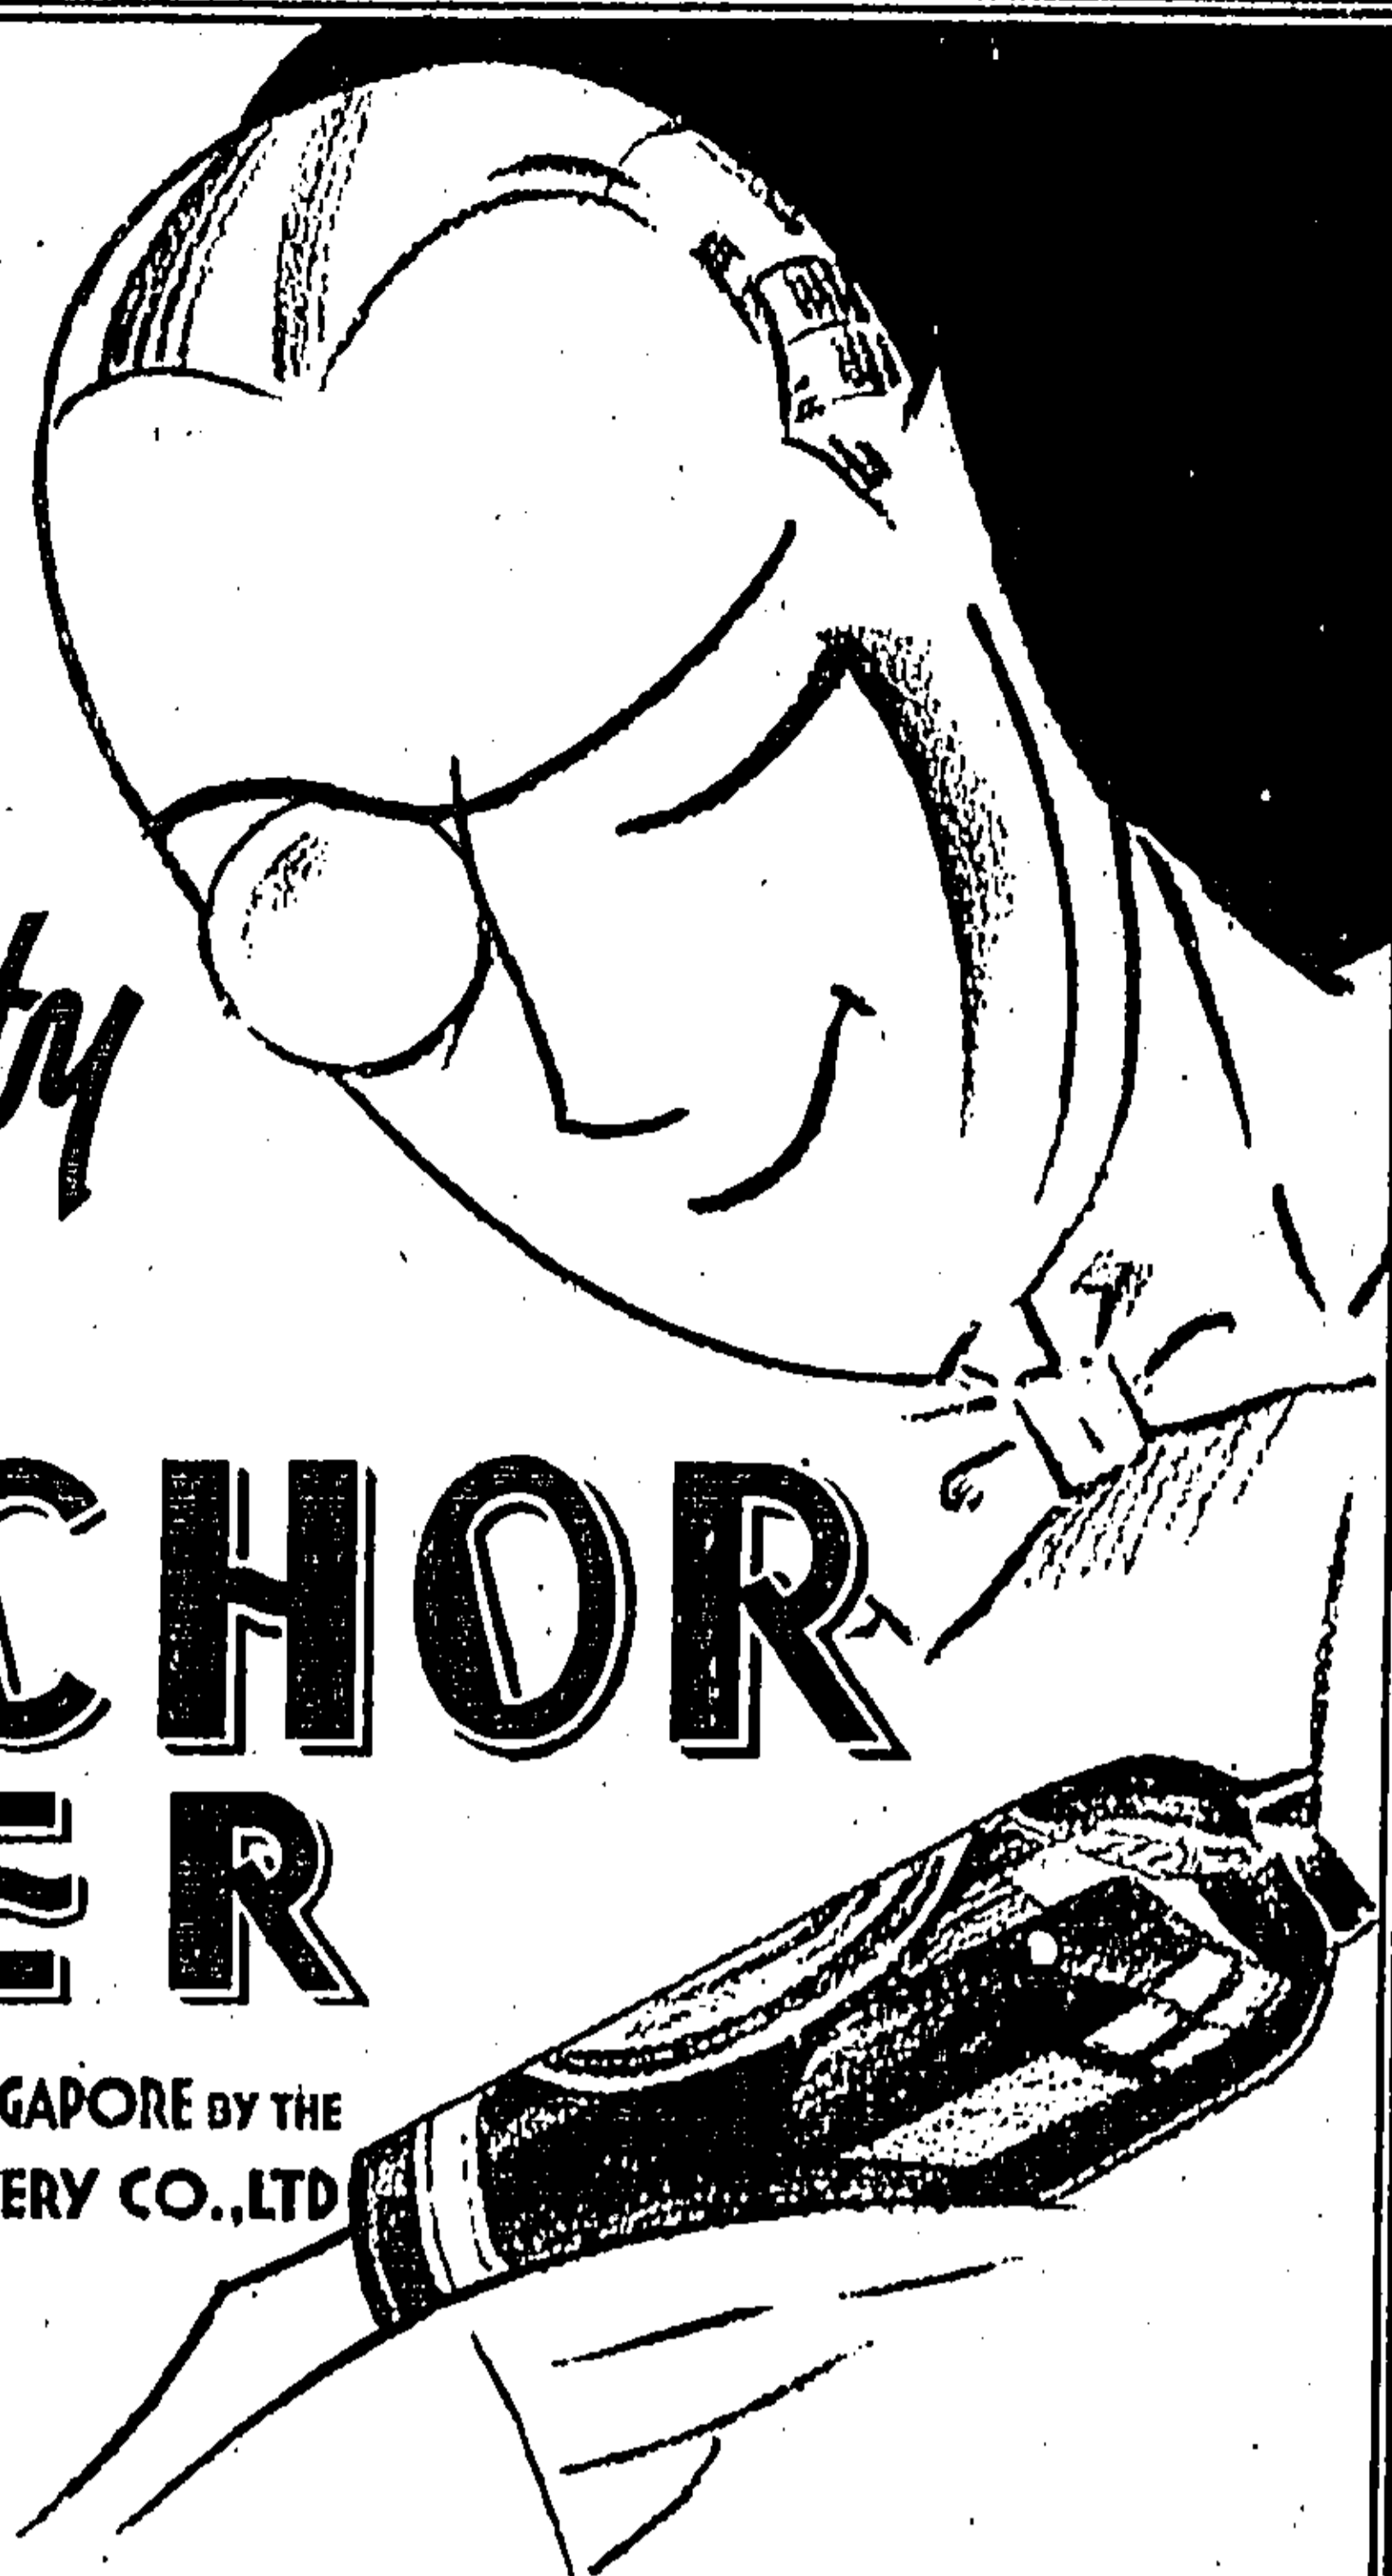

She said nothing.

Early next morning Lon heard the usual footsteps descend the stairs. Phil always got up before they did, started breakfast and took the pails and cans to the barn. But the movements were different now. The stairs creaked, a door opened, and then there was silence. Lon dressed quickly and went outside onto the porch. Down the road, following the way toward Mystic, he could see Phil's tall, broad body. The sun was just rising above the tree in the east.

H.K. CORONATION SWIMMING GALA

Chinese Selections
Cause Surprise

CHAMPIONS AMONG RESERVES

BRITISH AND PORTUGUESE TEAMS
NOT YET NOMINATED

THE CORONATION SWIMMING GALA, TO BE HELD UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE VICTORIA RECREATION CLUB NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT, PROMISES TO BE ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL INTERNATIONAL SPORTING FUNCTIONS YET STAGED IN THE COLONY, AS ALL THREE COMPETING NATIONS, GREAT BRITAIN, PORTUGAL AND CHINA, WILL BE FAIRLY EVENLY MATCHED.

China have taken great pains to select only their best swimmers, and several sensational omissions have been made. The Great Britain and Portuguese teams have yet to be selected.

LAU PO-HEI, THE COLONY, INTERPORT AND CHINA NATIONAL BACK-STROKE SWIMMING CHAMPION, HAS BEEN OMITTED FROM THE 100 YARDS BACK-STROKE (INDIVIDUAL) EVENT, AND IN HIS STEAD NG LIN, OF THE CHUNG SHING BENEVOLENT SOCIETY, WILL SWIM. WHILE THE RESERVE WILL BE CHAN KAI-HIM, OF THE CHINESE BATHING CLUB.

LAU PO-HEI, ACCORDING TO THE CHINESE SELECTORS, IS NOT YET FULLY FIT AND AS A RESULT HAS BEEN RESERVED FOR THE MEDLEY RELAY EVENT.

Another surprise has been caused in the selection of the six swimmers to represent China in the 300 Yards Free-Style Relay for teams of six. Chan Chun-nam, winner of the China National 400 Metres championship, being included only as a reserve, while the same treatment has been meted out to Tsang Ho-look, the Chinese Bathing Club champion and runner-up in the Kwangtung Provincial Meet over the 200 Metres.

A change in the programme has been effected, inasmuch as the water-polo match, at the conclusion of the gala, will not be between selected teams, but between a Combined Great Britain-Portugal team and China. This should be a bigger attraction than hitherto, as South China beat the V.R.C. (Portugal team) last season.

Speculation is rife at the moment as to the probable outcome of the 100 Yards individual event, in which Norman Lee (China) will probably be opposed to Wilfred Lawrence (Portugal), the Colony champion, and probably Rfm. E. Hamilton, the H. K. Area champion.

It was at first thought that J. R. Johnston, the former Colony champion, would represent Great Britain, but we understand the British selectors have been unable to get in touch with him.

In last year's 100 Yards Colony Free-Style championship, Lawrence just beat Lee by a touch, and next Saturday night may see a reversal of that decision, as Norman Lee has been practising assiduously throughout the winter months. He may, however, be over-trained, in which case Lawrence should romp away. Hamilton has also been swimming very well recently and should give the other two a keen fight.

Back-Stroke Tussle.

Lionel Roza-Pereira will probably represent Portugal in the back-stroke and, in the event of Ng Lin swimming for China, should win. The British selectors are experiencing some difficulty at the moment in nominating their back-stroke swimmer, but Harry Millington seems to be the pick at the moment and will probably swim.

Yet another surprise is in store for swimmers when they learn that Wong Lu-man, the Mak Ngah Association and Colony Interport reserve breast-stroke swimmer, has been dropped altogether from the Chinese team and instead Ng Kam-to, of the Chinese Y.M.C.A., will swim against E. M. Marques (Portugal) and R. B. Wood (Great Britain) in the 100 Yards individual event.

Wood is the only known British breast-stroker outside of Lieut. J. M. Calvert, having broken 84 secs. for the distance, whereas the latter's best time was in the region of 86 during a trial last week. There are several Service swimmers who have yet to be tried out, however, and a change in this event is not unlikely.

The 300 Yards Medley Relay should witness a thrilling struggle between Portugal and China for the major honours, with Great Britain not lagging far behind.

China, with Norman Lee (free), Lau Po-hei (back) and Enrique Chan (breast), the latter being better known as the Colony throwing the polo-ball champion, will offer a serious threat to Portugal, who will most probably be represented by Wilfred Lawrence (free), L. Roza-Pereira (back) and E. M. Marques (breast). Great Britain's team will present a difficult problem as they have yet to find swimmers to fill these three positions.

Thrills Anticipated

The 300 Yards Free-Style Relay for teams of six will witness a thrilling race, and, as there is usually very little in this event, Portugal, with the Colony's finest sprinters, should just about win. China, who have already selected their team, will be represented by Chung Tze-ting (Chinese "Y"), Ng Lin (Chung Shing), Ng Chun-man (Chung Shing), Ip Hon-chuen (South China), Kwok Hon-ming (South China) and Robert Chan (Chinese Bathing Club).

The Diving will be purely an exhibition affair, but China have entered four divers who will probably offer a serious challenge at the forthcoming Colony Championships. These are Wong Sik-hon, the Colony's second string Interport diver, Wong Kwok-Kit, Wong Woon-ki and Ip Hon-chuen.

The Chinese water-polo team will be a very strong one and is as follows: Chan Sik-pui, in goal; Lau Yum-chung and Enrique Chan as the two full-backs; Fung Kwok-wa, centre-half; Ng Lin, right-wing; Robert Chan, centre-forward and Shek Kam-pui, left wing.

The Great Britain-Portugal combined team has not yet been selected.

NEW WORLD CHAMPION

LOU AMBERS BEATS CANZONERI

OVERWHELMING TRIUMPH

NEW YORK, YESTERDAY. LOU AMBERS BEAT TONY CANZONERI ON POINTS HERE TO-DAY IN A VERY ONE-SIDED BOUT FOR THE WORLD'S LIGHTWEIGHT BOXING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Canzoneri won only three of the fifteen rounds, the veteran finding the pace set by his younger opponent much too hot for him, and towards the end he was gasping and taking every opportunity for a clinch and seemed scarcely able to stand.

In the first three rounds, Ambers scored repeatedly with left hooks to the face and opened up an old cut on Canzoneri's nose.

In spite of the blood which was pouring down his face, Canzoneri fought back pluckily for a time and landed some telling swings with his right on Ambers' jaw in the fourth round.

FADE-OUT AFTER EIGHTH. Canzoneri also had the best of the sixth round, and completely outpointed Ambers in the eighth, but after this the fight was all Ambers'.

Both boxers weighed in before the fight at 9 stone 9 lbs., with Ambers a 3 to 1 favourite.

A crowd of 11,000 spectators paid $40,746 to see the fight.—Reuter.

FOURTEEN GOLF CLUBS LIMIT

Canada Decides To Follow U.S.A.

Toronto, Yesterday. The Royal Canadian Golf Association has decided to enforce a limit of fourteen clubs in tournament play, as is already the case in the United States.

The new rule becomes effective as from May 1, 1938.

The action was taken in order to keep the rules uniform, because a large number of Canadians compete in American tournaments, and vice versa.—Reuter.

VOLUNTEERS SWAMP FILIPINOS

RESERVES HAVE TRIAL IN LEAGUE BASEBALL

THE League Baseball encounter at Caroline Hill yesterday between the Volunteers and the Filipino Club proved a very one-sided affair, resulting in an easy win for the former by 17 runs to 10 after they had established a commanding lead of 12 runs in the first two innings. They utilised the remaining innings for practice for their reserves, with the result that no less than 16 of their players were on view.

Taking the field first, the Volunteers allowed the Filipinos to score the first run through Figueirido, who was given a walk to first base and reached home on an error.

Alvares, the Filipino pitcher, was very erratic at the commencement and, coupled with several safe hits by the Volunteers, they amassed no less than seven runs in the first innings.

At their next turn to bat the Filipinos were blanked, and the Defence Corps added another six runs, mostly through fielding errors. Thereafter the Volunteers took things easily and fielded their reserves. Bowen, their pitcher, also eased off with the result that the Filipinos reached first base oftener, and in the sixth innings actually scored five runs.
Bowen, however, tightened up in the last innings and allowed the Filipinos only one more run.

Wing Lee, as catcher, and Men-dona, at first base, were outstanding in the Volunteers' infield and played good baseball. The former's throw to second base was an improvement on last year's form, while Mendona was sure with everything that came his way and in a decided asset to the team.

Sa, at second base, was rather shaky with grounders, but was prominent with several good high catches, while Beltrao, at short stop, though never seriously tested, covered well. Abbas, who was injured early in the game, covered the third base well, but Delgado, his substitute, was not so safe and committed several errors which resulted in runs being scored.

LEONARD'S HARD HITTING
The outfielders did not have much to do and accomplished the little they had to do well. N. Leonard was safe with high balls but when at second base was very slow in his tagging.

Stan Leonard, at right field, was safe, while he was the hardest hitter on view in the first two innings, but he was taken out of the game early in favour of Ismail, who showed great promise with his safe fielding and hitting.

The great weakness of the Filipino team was their pitching. Alvares was obviously out of practice and did not display much ball control, while Mendona, his catcher, was very inexpensive and made numerous errors which resulted in the Volunteers scoring gift runs.

WELCOME CHANGE

In the latter part of the game M. el Arculli and his brother O. el Arculli took over the pitching, and catching respectively, and made the game more interesting, but the Volunteers had too great a lead and did not trouble much. O. el Arculli, at third base in the first few innings, was prominent with his fielding, but Eramella was weak at second base and missed several easy catches.

Kitchell and Ribiero, at centre and left field respectively, brought off several good catches, but Castro, at right field, was very weak and it was through him that the Volunteers scored most of their runs.

In view of the fact that the Filipinos had not even had one practice game they showed promise of better things and when they have properly settled down they should give a good account of themselves in the League.

As there was no scorer at the game, detailed scores are not available.

Scores by Innings:
1 2 3 4 5 6 7
Filipino 1 0 1 1 1 5 1=10 runs
Volunteers 7 6 3 1 0 0 =17 runs

The following were the teams:—
Volunteers—Wing Lee (c), Bowen
(p), Mendona (1st b), Beltrao (2nd b), Delgado (3rd b), Abbas (3rd b), Leonard, S. Leonard, H. de Sa, H.
Campos, A. P. Pereira and A. Ismail (Outfielders).

Filipinos—Noves (c), Alvares (p),
O'Arculli (1st b), Eramella (2nd b),
M. el Arculli (3rd b), Nazarin (3rd b),
Figueirido, C. C. Figueirido, Kitchell, Xavier, Ribiero and Rull (Infielders).

STAFFORD GOING TO SINGAPORE

Big LOSS To Local Billiards

Colony billiards will be all the poorer with the departure soon from Hong Kong of W. Stafford, of the Naval Yard Police, who has been promoted to a senior post at the Singapore Naval Base.

One of the men instrumental in the foundation of the Royal Naval Yard Police Recreation Club, he has served on the council of the Hong Kong Amateur Billiards Association, and was for several years Assistant Secretary to the Steel, Coulson Billiards League.
This year he has done much to place the McEwan Younger Snooker and Billiards League on a better footing, in the capacity of Hon. Secretary.

His absence will be keenly felt by all who know him, and especially by members of the Naval Yard Police.

HONG KONG CYCLING CLUB

To Be Revived By "Hike" To Territories

A step to revive the activities of the Hong Kong Cycling Club will be made to-day, when a hike of about 60 to 70 miles in the New Territories will, weather permitting, be embarked upon by local enthusiasts.

Mr. H. A. G. Kentes, who returned to the Colony on April 28 last, and who was mainly responsible for organising the Club, has extended an invitation to all cyclists in the Colony to join this "hike," which is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. sharp from the Alhambra Theatre, Kowloon.

KOTEWALL CUP FINAL FOR TO-DAY

Even Encounter Anticipated

CHINESE FAVOURED

The 1936-37 football season, will come to an end this afternoon, when the Final of the Kotewall
Charity Cup competition, between South China and the Army, will be played on the Club ground, commencing at 5 p.m.

The last game ended in a 3-3 draw after the Army had led till the last minute, when Lee Wai-tong scored a spectacular goal, but in view of the numerous changes made in the Army team, owing to departures by the last troopship, the South China team will start favourites to-day.

Wanklyn, of the Fusiliers, will occupy the pivotal position, and Moore will lead the line. In the last game Campbell played at centre-half, while Miller, of the Seaforths, was in the centre-forward berth.

The Chinese have chosen a strong side, Lee Wai-tong being included. Before this game, the Fusilier Boys, winners of the Boys' League, will encounter a team from the Rest of the League, and another good game should be witnessed.

The following are the teams:—
Army—Fus. Rowlands (R.W.F.); Kimm. Pickering (H.U.I.), Eggr. Stevens (R.U.I.), Pte. Williamson (Sea-forth), Cpl. Wanklyn (R.W.F.), Fus.

Coronation Music By Band Of Ulster Rifles

To-Night's Band Concert

Sibelius's Finlandia On Programme

An attractive programme has been arranged for to-night's band concert at the Peninsula Hotel. The Band of the Seaforth Highlanders (by permission of Lt. Col. J. Muirhead and officers) will provide the music under the baton of Mr. E. G. Baker, A.R.C.M.

The programme follows:—

PART ONE

1. March—"Bond of Friendship."

Rogan.

Mackenzie Rogan started his career as a Band Boy, and rose to the rank of Lt. Col. He served with the Coldstream Guards and died in 1912.

2. Overture—"Le Carnaval Romain"

(The Roman Carnival).

Berlioz.

Hector Berlioz was born at La Cote St. Andre, in 1803, and was known as an eminent French composer and pioneer of romanticism. The son of a country doctor, he was at first educated for the practice of medicine. Thus were the best years of his life devoted to a profession that he had no interest in, and it is of wonder over brought to the public eyes. The Overture to the "Roman Carnival" was composed in the year 1843, after a period of very successful concerts in Russia and Germany. After a flash of an opening phrase, a beautiful cantabile melody is taken up by the Oboe. This theme is very well treated in Open Canon on the Full Band, and leads straight into the overture proper. Here the tempo of a 3-8 rhythm, trips along to delightful melodies, in a Carnival spirit. This overture is best known for its wonderful orchestration.

3. Waltz—"Gold and Silver."

Lehar.

Written by the composer of the "Merry Widow" and "The Land of Smiles," little need be said of this waltz, which is well known for its tuneful melodies.

4. Selection—"Cavaleria Rusticana"

Mascagni.

5. Two Solos:—

(a) "Because".... Guy D'Arlecot.

(b) "Love's Old Sweet Song".... Molloy.

Soloist:—L/Cpl. A. Meek.

6. Tone Poem—"Finlandia"

Sibelius.

Finlandia is intensely national in sentiment and always evokes popular enthusiasm in the composers' native land. So much so, that during the political conflict, some few years ago, between Russia and Finland, its performance was forbidden.

PART TWO

7. Grand Patriotic Fantasia—

"Festival of the Empire."

Rogan.

Introducing:—Australia: There's a Land where summer never sleeps. Burma: "Kaya" Than. Scotland: "Annie Laurie." Fiji Islands: "Autiee Mai Na." New Zealand: "God defend New Zealand." India: "Two Popular Tunes." Wales: "Land of my Fathers." Jamaica: "Kallinka." Canada: "The Girl of Canada." Ireland: "Let Erin remember." Hong Kong: "Chinese Flower Song." England:

"Land of Hope and Glory." "Rule Britannia."

8. Trombone Solo—

"The Joy-Wheel".... Sutton.

Soloist:—L/Cpl. A. Day.

9. Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2.... Liszt.

10. Humoresque—"Two Gendarmes".... Douglas.

11. Excerpts from: "La Traviata".... Verdi.

12. Grand Overture Solonelle—"1812".... Tschalkowsky.

A broad hymn-like, flowing melody taken from one of the chants of the Greek Church, opens the work and is succeeded by vividly descriptive little music. When the light begins and the invaders at first gain ascendancy, the notes of the "La Marseillaise" rise above the din of the battles; but as Moscow goes up in flames the Slavonic theme sounds above the passionate songs of the revolution until at last the "Marseillaise" is heard no more. Land of Hope and Glory. Garb of Auld Gaul. Blue Bonnets over the border. Rule Britannia. Scotland for Ever. GOD SAVE THE KING.

POLICE AND FOOTBALL CLUB IN TIE

EVIDENCE that this season's Lawn Bowls League is likely to be much more open than it has been in recent years was provided yesterday at King's Park, where Recreio lowered the colours of the Champions, Craigengower succeeding on only one rink. It was a queer coincidence that R. F. Luz, a member of Craigengower's all-conquering team last year, was mainly responsible for the Champions' defeat by two shots.

Recreio, however, surprisingly succumbed to the Football Club in the Second Division.

In the match between the Indians and Police F. M. el Arculli of the I.R.C. played No. 2 to J. Orem in the absence of one of the Police players.

In the Third Division game between Craigengower and the K.F.C. both teams played one man short.

The Police and Football Club were associated in the season's first tie, J. Rodger just failing to give the footballers victory at the last end, scoring a three when a four was needed.

A single and a brace at the last two ends enabled K. S. Robertson to share the spoils with A. H. Basto, while a single at the last end saw J. Jack come on level terms with J. Brown.

Led 16-11 at the 17th end, C. Roza-Perreira's rink rallied to such effect that they won 18-10, while R. F. Luz's four, down 17-11 at the 16th end scored 2, 2, 5, 4 and 3 to win 27-17 against R. Bass's rink. F. Cullen's rink, in which B. Parks deputised for M. Ferguson, followed up their "possible" last week by beating A. E. Silstone's four by 21 shots — the K.C.C. players scored at only four ends.

Sixes were recorded by R. Bass (lost by 10), G. C. Moss (lost by 8), T. Armstrong (won by 13), L. Jack (won by 8) and R. Lapsley (won by 14).

PRINCE'S BUILDING, HONG KONG

At the German Consulate when Germany's National Day was celebrated. Left to right: Sir Atholl MacGregor, H.E. the O.A.G. (Mr. N. L. Smith), Herr Gelewsky and Frau Gelewsky.

Mr. L. (Lolly) Goldman, of Messrs. Gilman and Company, who has been away on long leave, is expected to return to the Colony in the course of the next fortnight in the s.s. Gneisenau. Mrs. Goldman is remaining in Scotland until October.

Mrs. L. T. Ride, wife of the Dean of the Medical Faculty of the University of Hong Kong, has left for a holiday with her children in North China. She will be joined by her husband when the long vacation of the University commences.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Neville, who have been on a visit to the Colony from Japan, left for England on Wednesday. Mrs. Neville is the daughter of Mr. J. E. Anderson.

Mr. I. H. Geare, Assistant General Manager of the Standard-Vacuum Company, left the Colony on Wednesday in the Antenor. Mr. Geare is one of Hong Kong's most enthusiastic golfers.

Another officer of H.M.S. Olympus is to be married soon. He is Lieutenant H. W. Loughborough and his bride will be Miss Maureen Moir, who is extremely popular among the younger set.

Miss M. C. R. Bonnell, Secretary of the Helena May Institute, was married at St. John's Cathedral on Monday to Mr. Thomas Campbell Fairburn. The Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington gave the bride away and there was a large attendance of friends.

The Races drew a fashion parade which seemed to confirm the belief in the Colony's growing prosperity. Miss Betty Fair, one of our keenest horsewomen, looked refreshing in an all-white ensemble. Mrs. V. R. Gordon also wore white, patterned in China-blue, while Mrs. Archbutt had such a pretty orange and yellow patterned afternoon frock.

Photo taken on the occasion of the inauguration of the Hong Kong Anti-Heroin Society, which has attracted wide attention.

Mr. Jack Chubb, of Messrs. Dodwell and Company, Foochow, and a well-known sportsman, is shortly to visit Hong Kong on a short holiday. His engagement to Miss E. L. Rogers, of the Motor Department of Messrs. Gilman and Company was announced recently.

A lively celebration took place at the residence of Miss Valerie Becker on the occasion of her twenty-first birthday. Among those who attended were the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. George, Miss Pat Anslow, Miss Helen Becker, Mr. and Mrs. Sequeira, Mrs. Veasona, Mr. John Wilson and Mr. Quinlan.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

How they manage it, I don't know, but THE JADE TREE, now in its one and only store at No. 1, The Wharf, Kowloon, still contrives to weave an exotic charm all its own, from the very moment you enter its doors. The taste of the connoisseur is evident in everything — from the velvet bronzes and golden lacquers of ancient dynasties down to the cleverest of modern potteries and glass. Not a curio shop, but a miniature museum of Chinese Art, THE JADE TREE can always be depended upon for personal treasures of enduring beauty or gifts unique and unusual, and, best of all, at prices no higher than the commonplace.

Whether it is the Races, a dance, young lady, you are dolled up to conquer. And to have a real conquest you need the right accessories. If I were to draw you charts and maps to point out the way to the place where you can get the things that lead to sure victory, you would see that all roads lead to — oh no, not Rome, but to our American shop, MAIZEE'S. There is a distinction about this shop, I don't mean only the uncanny way in which they can select the pick of the fashion . . . but something undefinable and still there. You will know what I mean when you see those beautiful new light sharkskin summer coats they've just got in.

BREWERS BOOKSHOP — easily the most exciting bookshop in town — is always a little nest of the new, the most interesting, and the most sought-after books of the time. This week you'll find, among others, "We The Living," by Ayn Rand — "A very remarkable novel . . . magnificent . . ." say the critics. "We Are Not Alone," an absorbing psychological study by James Hilton, "A Naval Wife Goes East," by Eileen Walker — a charming book, frank and deliciously amusing. "Blind Man's Year," by Warwick Deeping — a new book that will add to an already great reputation. And one that will find a place in every library — G. K. Chesterton's last book — "The Paradoxes of Mr. Pond."

And now, after weeks of sales and packing and moving and general upheaval, a new PAUL RENNET has emerged at 30, Nathan Road, Kowloon. In their fresh, artistic and charming surroundings new frocks are awaiting you. Evening gowns of rustling taffeta, satins and brilliantly coloured chiffons . . . these are just a few of the lovely materials you will see in irresistible models. Though the management changed, the policy to cater to the discriminating woman will be stronger than ever, and they are determined always to bring you the best that fashion can offer. And you will like the prices too.

During the next week we'll want to put on clothes which will be fitting for such a great occasion as the Coronation festivities. Clothes with poise and grace, clothes that indicate quality which must not be marred by imperfection in a single line. Such are the frocks which LANE, CRAWFORD'S are offering to you. Soft organdies in gentle colours like the rainbow breaking through a haze, delicately patterned or embroidered with tiny sprays of flowers. Their style makes them ideal for evening-wear and, at the same time, all you need to add is just a large picture-hat and you are ready for the garden-party.

The weatherman says that Summer is here — and there is no doubt about it! It means, for you, ladies, to change to summer toilettries. At the GRAND DISPENSARY they are ready for you. There are all the finest lotions, creams and cosmetics for summer use. They are as refreshing as the first fragrant breeze of morning. They will keep your complexion cool and will lend to it that all important cool look too. At the GRAND DISPENSARY you will also find creams and lotions to protect you against sunburn. And remember: the GRAND DISPENSARY is now at the corner, China Bldg., close to the Queen's Theatre.

PERSONALIA

The debut of Modie and Lemaux attracted even a bigger crowd than usual to the Gloucester, and they were warmly applauded for their slow ballroom dances, which, for beauty and grace, were unsurpassed.

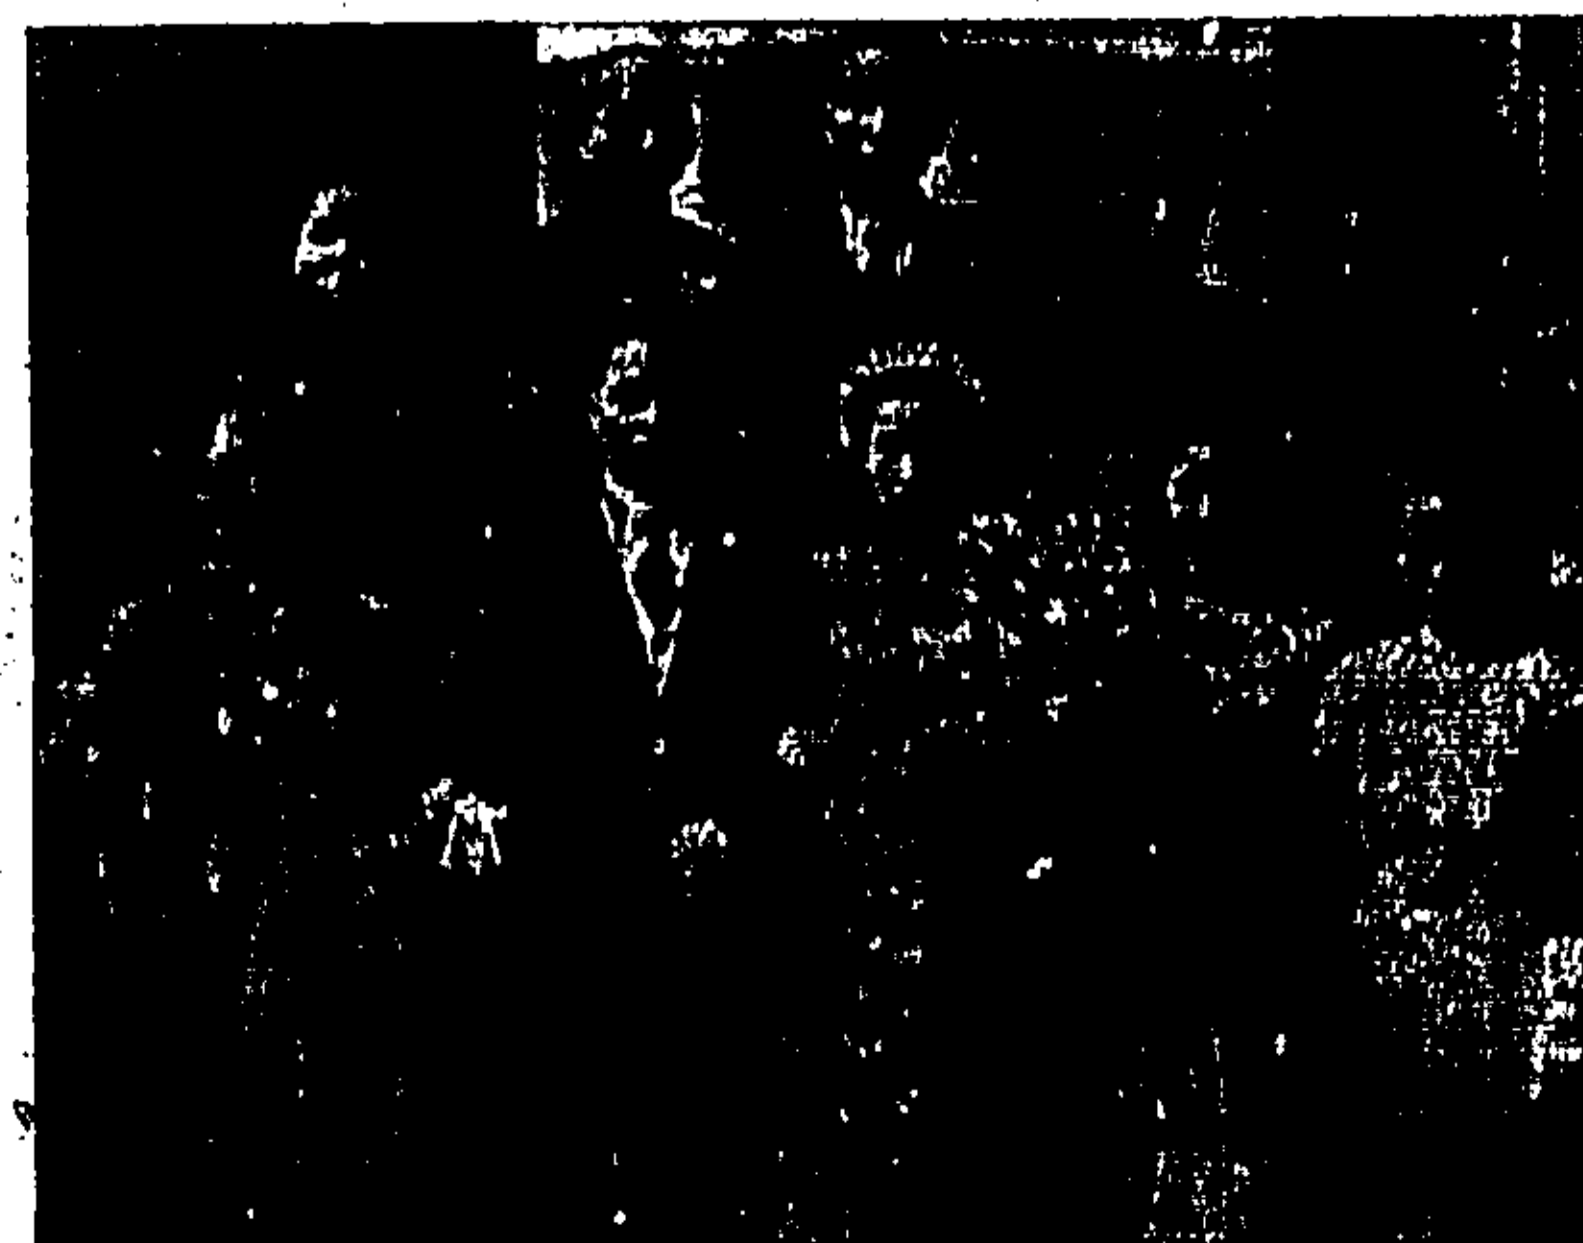

The "younger set" were well in evidence and Miss Booker, who is comparatively a newcomer, looked delightful in apricot chiffon, while Miss Summers in apple-green gauze was coolness personified.

The brighter shades appeared to find considerable favour with the fair sex. Miss Eileen Bliss, who was recently erroneously reported to have left for England, wore a dainty frock of ruby taffeta and Miss Marie da Rosa favoured the same shade. Doreen Leonard dropped in rather late in a very smart gown of red satia with a chic coatlet to match.

Victor Hugo, popular manager of the Oriental Theatre, was entertaining a large party which included Miss Edith Hersey in cool snow-white, and Modie, looking very dainty despite her exertions in her final dance number.

One of the most striking gowns, in the large array, was Mr. Brockant's oyster-grey satin, with green and purple and grey chiffon twisted to form a shoulder-strap, finishing in sash-ends falling to the feet.

Mrs. Stuart-Smith wore a smart gown of pale apricot and Mrs. Ramsey, who always dresses in exquisite taste, had on a peach-coloured satin gown with a diamante headress as a neat finishing touch. Mrs. Walker in an attractively flowered satin in delicious shades of silvery brown, looked particularly charming.

Group taken after the wedding at the Hotel Cecil this last week of Mr. Chow Lin-yu and Miss Yau Tam-ying. (Mee Cheung).

Two happy snapshots taken by the "Herald" photographer at Repulse Bay on Wednesday.

The Royal Welch Fusiliers have lost a popular officer this week with the departure of Lieutenant C. J. L. Lewis in the Antenor, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kirby left for England in the Antenor on long leave. Mr. Kirby is Secretary of the China Coast Officers Guild.

Despite the fact that last Sunday was so brilliantly fine, remarkably few took the opportunity to bathe. Repulse Bay was free from congestion, although there was pressure in the Lido at tea-time. After the fashion previews of beach wear, it was expected that there would be an alluring assortment of the very latest in bathing costumes. Apart from a striking flowered two-piece ensemble worn by Miss Dorcen Hughes, there was really nothing to compare with the gorgeous creations which the film stars adorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood have left the Colony for Shanghai and the United States on long leave. Mrs. Wood is the owner of the "Jade Tree" which, during her absence, will be left in the charge of Mrs. Smith.

Mr. A. Glipperich, Consul-General for Germany in Hong Kong, accompanied by Mrs. Glipperich, left Germany on Wednesday in the s.s. Bergenland and is due back in the Colony early next month.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Lovely lace blouses soft as the softest breeze, the most exotic and enchanting picture-hats — ones that you can't be without on the holidays to come — flowers that are festive and gay for the ladies who would be a-bloom, flowers for your frocks, for your hats, and sprays for your hair. And chic evening frocks that are surely your choice for Coronation dances, frocks resplendent with elaborate embroideries, romantic with billowy skirts and fitting corsage . . . and that is just a suggestion of all the lovely new things you will see at RIVELLE'S this week.

"Hats are clever this season," says a well-known fashion editor . . . but at MAYO'S SHOPPE they show a positive genius. There is a shop-full of hats of every material which is fashionable, or you may fancy, and their genius lies in their brilliant design. There are not only hats covering a range of styles, but their lines are so shaped that they are becoming to every face. So it is unimaginable that you couldn't find a hat there to suit your personality. And lots and lots of new hats are coming in to MAYO'S every week. Ask them about your old hats — they do wonders!

Dedicated to the perfect ensemble . . . is that very pleasant place of MADAME D'O'BRY'S. And this week more than ever, for with garden-party and other functions coming, everybody is doing their best to turn out as befits the great occasion. After looking over their tremendous and dazzling array of afternoon and evening frocks of chiffon, organdie, taffeta and lace and the most beautiful and delicate garden-party dresses, I was amazed to hear that MME. D'O'BRY had already supplied all our most fashionable ladies with their gowns. Something especially charmed me: those lovely picture-hats with hand bags to match.

COLONIAL DAMES beauty aids present a new basic skin treatment which enables you to bring professional beauty methods into the privacy of your own boudoir. The first essentials for a beautiful skin are cleanliness, lubricating, toning and massaging. For these four essentials COLONIAL DAMES provides you with an All-Purpose Cream, for cleansing, lubricating, firming and nourishment of the skin. COLONIAL DAMES All-Purpose Cream contains an abundance of Vitamin "D" thereby providing a new source of supply for the skin of this precious substance. A. S. Watson & Co., Ltd. has a number of clever little booklets on COLONIAL DAMES. They are yours for the asking.

Summer is here, the time when you have to watch Junior more than ever, what with prickly heat and all the other unpleasant things. Most unpleasant of all and most troublesome are worms. A wise mother, at this time of the year, doesn't wait until the unmistakable signs appear but takes the precaution of giving her baby a worm cure. WATSON'S WORM BONBONS are guaranteed to cure, or prevent, worms and in so doing they act, as well, as a tonic. They will help our baby to grow strong, happy and contented. They are pleasant to take . . . children love them. Only 9 cents each.

Administering an Infant's Legacy

The appointment of a Trust Corporation, rather than an individual, as Executor and/or Trustee of an Infant's Legacy secures many important advantages, not the least of which are absolute continuity of management, security and secrecy. The appointment of a new trustee, consequent on death, incapacity or retirement invariably entails trouble and expense. With a Corporation however, this risk is obviated. It is Better to hide the Chaste Soul's Radiance
The World Hates a Thing Too Pure

Poetry of Li Po

LI PO, one of China's greatest poets has also been one of the most discussed. It might seem superfluous, then, to add a few remarks to those of important Chinese and foreign contributors on the subject. But perhaps it will not be quite useless to try and disentangle ourselves from the mass of very contrary opinions expressed by these critics.

Chinese poetry is the most intense part of their literature; the difficulty of translating it is not only the rendering of the regular rhythmic effects of the original but of something which, like music, weaves its unities out of successive impressions of sound. And then, too, there is the difficulty of assimilating a verbal medium which consists of pictorial appeals to the eye. Chinese poetry speaks at once with the vividness of painting and with the mobility of sounds.

The first foreign translators of Li Po held him as the greatest Chinese poet, but their prolix rendering of the poems is not convincing.

The Three Paragons

The Tang critics were full of praise. In the new Book of Tang, Sun Chi says: "In the reign of the Emperor Wen Taung, by Imperial edict, Po in songs and odes, Pei Min in sword-dance, and Chang Hsu in cursive calligraphy were declared the Three Paragons." The Sung critics did not regard him as highly. Wang An Shih says: "Li Po's style is swift, yet never careless; lively, yet never formal. But his intellectual outlook was low and sordid. In nine poems out of ten he deals with nothing but wine and women." Hu Tzu: "The reason why vulgar people find Li Po's poetry congenial is that it is easy to enjoy. His intellectual outlook was mean."

Arthur Waley is harder still: "Li's reputation, like all success, is due partly to accident. After suffering a temporary eclipse during the Sung dynasty he came back into favour in the 16th Century when most of the popular anthologies were made. These compilations devote an inordinate space to his works and he has been held in corresponding esteem by a public whose knowledge of poetry is chiefly confined to anthologies."

Realism Of The T'ang

The study of the works of art of the T'ang dynasty might help us to disentangle ourselves and form a personal opinion; for, poets in China always led the way for the artists, as must have happened in a country where art is the first prerogative of a lettered class, an "art of the brush."

The T'ang period is a time of creative energy and its art delights in scenes of war and animal life. The realism of the T'ang is reflected in the statues of horses neighing, shaking their heads with impatience—horses which recall the furious raids of the time across the Gobi desert and the Mongol steppes. It was an art compact with force. But, at the same time, the exquisite refinement of a cultured society created the delicate little funeral figurines representing women, princesses, dancing-girls and musicians and the portraits of long white faces with their subtle and sophisticated charm.

Realism had become rhetorical and the material idea of the beginning of Tang was succeeded by one based upon the intellectual faculties. The elements of this transformation were in existence

—By—
Phyllis Juby

In Li Po's poetry. What he was seeking was no longer the world of concrete forms but an idealised reflection of the universe. His poetry, as far as we can judge from the work of his best translator, the Japanese Obata, is a record of subtle impressions and seems to shrink from too concrete a materiality.

Lament Of Spring

"In the deserted garden, among crumbling walls
"The willows show green again,
"While the sweet notes of the water-lily song
"Seem to lament the spring."

It is a poetry of impressions barely hinted at. Li Po discerns the very soul of the universe in the lines of landscape which makes it as dramatic as a human countenance.

"The water-side city stands as in a picture scroll.
"The sky is lucid love the mountain shrouded in evening gloom,
"While the waters on either hand shine like mirrors;
"Two painted bridges span them like rainbows dropt from the sky,
"The smoke from the cottages curls up around the citron trees,
"And the hues of late autumn are on the green paulownias."

Came An Amorous Rider

His love for women is never vulgar; through his poems we feel their slender grace, their mincing elegance and the coquetry of their attitudes. Indeed, the lightness and delicacy of his style bears witness that his sophisticated poetry of feminine form has found its perfect medium of expression.

"Came an amorous rider,
"Trampling the fallen flowers of the road,
"The dangling end of his crop
"Brushes a passing carriage of five-coloured clouds.
"The jewelled curtain is raised.
"A beautiful woman smiles within—
"That is my house," she whispers,
"Pointing to a pink house beyond."

Li Po's poetry is thus instructive in showing what elements of transformation it contained and how, while the vogue of realism was still at its height—realism expressed in the works of art of the time—his poems showed an allusive style in which, for example, the praise of a woman or an amorous encounter was no more than a medium for the expression of inward feelings.

An Encounter

"She, a Tung-yang girl, stands barefoot on the bank,

"He, a boatman of Kuei-chi, is a distance that is barely indicated, in his boat.

"The moon has not set.

"They look at each other—broken-hearted."

His reckless life, his too great ease might not have won him the sympathy of many. Did he not himself say:

"Shake not your crown, if perjured;
"Nor flap your garment, if spoiled with 'Lan'!

"It is better to hide the chaste soul's radiance,

"The world hates a thing too pure."

Mr. Norman Davis On Anglo-American Pact Prospects Little Likelihood Seen

(SPECIAL TO "SUNDAY HERALD")
LONDON, YESTERDAY.
"HOPES OF CONCLUDING AN ANGLO-AMERICAN PACT ARE SLIGHT, AS THE WORLD ALREADY HAS AN OVERDOSE OF SUCH THINGS."
This straightforward statement was made by Mr. Norman Davis, United States "Ambassador-at-Large," who is returning to America on board the "Manhattan" to-day, to a "Daily Mail" correspondent.
Mr. Davis tempered his startling declaration by adding: "The United States is ready to take the initiative in furthering commercial relations between the two countries."
THIRTY-NINE DAYS AGO, MR. DAVIS LANDED IN ENGLAND ON A SPECIAL MISSION FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.
ALTHOUGH HIS TRIP WAS SURROUNDED BY THE USUAL OFFICIAL RETICENCE, IT BECAME KNOWN THAT HE WAS IN EUROPE IN AN ENDEAVOUR TO STRAIGHTEN OUT THE ECONOMIC AND FINANCIAL MUDDLE, AND MUCH IMPORTANCE WAS ATTACHED TO HIS TALKS, ESPECIALLY WITH BRITISH STATESMEN.

Mr. Norman Davis

Secrets Of Committee Meetings

REPORTS DISTURB LORD PLYMOUTH

London, Yesterday.
Means to check cruelties inflicted on non-combatants of both sides in the course of the Spanish civil war were again under discussion at the meeting to-day of the chairman's sub-committee of the international non-intervention committee.
It is emphasised in circles in close touch with the committee's work that reappearance in the press of unauthorised accounts of its proceedings and those of its sub-committees is causing deep concern.
In the early days of its existence the committee took note of the disadvantages of unofficial reports of its work, and it was agreed, in order to check this practice, that fuller communiques should be published at the end of meetings.
This course has been followed and communiques have been regularly issued.
The chairman's sub-committee desire to make it clear that these communiques alone contain authentic information as to what passes at the meetings, and all other information is entirely unauthorised.—British Wireless.

New Radio Station At Hunghom

Tenders are being called by the Government for a piling contract for Hung Hom wireless station and the construction of a "main building and fencing."
The works consist of the construction of a New Wireless Station.

NEW PAPAL ENCYCLICAL

Speech From Rome Shortly

Paris, Yesterday.
A new Papal encyclical is expected to be issued shortly, according to despatches from Rome.
The encyclical, it is stated, will deal with the Roman Catholic Church in all countries of the world, and will stress that democratic governments afford the strongest guarantee for peace and for the liberty of the Church.
The despatches add that Vatican circles maintain complete silence regarding the rumours.—Trans-Ocean.

CONFERENCE PROSPECTS

"Prospects of a world conference for disarmament and economic peace are absolutely nil, and progress in this direction must be made step by step."
Mr. Davis concluded his impressions of the European situation in London by stating that the results of the International Sugar Conference were encouraging as the "first step in the direction of economic stability." — Trans-Ocean.
Referring to the rapid building up of armaments by the nations of the world, Mr. Davis said, "Disarmament must come but it might well wait till the outcome of our endeavours to establish economic stability."

TURKISH PREMIER IN PARIS

Lunch With M. Blum

Paris, Yesterday.
The Turkish Premier, General Ismet Inonu, arrived here to-day on his way to London for the Coronation.
The newspapers, welcoming him to the French capital, describe him as the closest collaborator of Kemal Ataturk, the Turkish Dictator.
The Turkish statesman lunched with Premier Leon Blum and this evening will dine with the Foreign Minister, M. Yvon Delbos.—Trans-Ocean.

The insurgent attack on the Basque front continues, but no advance has been made as the Basques are putting up a stiff resistance.
Government planes bombed Saragossa, causing a number of casualties.
The political situation in Barcelona is calmer and there are indications that the city is returning to normal.—Router.
SANTANDER SUCCESS
Meanwhile, in Madrid it is reported that the Republicans on the Santander front have launched a vigorous attack on the insurgent lines.
The loyalists are stated to have occupied the village of Espinosa de Bricias, and, after consolidating their newly-won position, later took the village of Villa Nueva de Bricias.
The Madrid Defence Council also claims that in this action the Republican infantry stormed and captured two batteries of insurgent artillery, taking 60 prisoners.—Trans-Ocean.

MEXICAN CREDIT FOR MADRID

U.S. $20,000,000 Stated To Be Amount

Paris, Yesterday.
The Mexican Government has granted the Valencia Government a long-term credit of $20,000,000, and will grant another equal amount this summer, says "La Libertad" in a report from Mexico City.
The paper asserts that the Mexican Minister of Agriculture is endeavouring to raise a $50,000,000 credit in Washington and New York "for the alleged purpose of furthering Mexican agriculture but in reality for transference to the Valencia Government."
It is also stated that the Mexican auxiliary cruiser Motomar left for Spain on April 18 with a cargo of machine-guns and aeroplanes on board, and intends to land this war material on the Basque coast.—Trans-Ocean.
